BRUTALITY QUIZ SHIFTS BACK TO FIRST PRECINCT

Probe Pressed Yesterday as Agents Question Policemen.

ROVER MAY REQUEST SPECIAL PROSECUTOR

40 Expected to Face Grand Jury Wednesday; More Subpenas Issued.

Investigation by the Department of Justice into charges of police brutality centered yesterday around individuals attached to the First Precinct Station as the undercover men worked swiftly toward presentation of the case of James Henry Harker to the District grand jury Wednesday.

Throughout the morning and afternoon First Precinct policemen filed in and out of the doors of the Bureau of Investigation at 45-minute intervals. All of them made statements as to events on August 22, the day Harker charges he was flogged with a rubber hose, beaten with fists and kicked while under questioning in a house-breaking case.

Sergt. E. P. Myers, who was on duty at the First Precinct station when Harker was released from custody at the instance of his attorney, S. McComas Hawken, led the parade of policemen.

Sergeant Gets Subpena.

A week before Sergt. Myers made a statement for Capt. W. E. Holmes, commander of the First Precinct, holding that he had noticed no wounds or the black eye borne by Harker when Harker was freed that afternoon.

After spending some time at the Department of Justice and making a statement, Sergt. Myers was given a subpena to appear before the grand jury Wednesday.

Almost immediately after Sergt. Myers had left the Bureau of Investigation Private L. Bailes went in with a prisoner now under arrest at the First Precinct in custody. They remained about 45 minutes and the prisoner was then returned to the precinct station.

Prisoner's Name Kept Secret.

Police at the station declined to give the name of the prisoner, to tell how long he had been in custody, or what charges are against him. They would give no intimation of the nature of the statement he made to the Department of Justice agents. Bailes did not get a grand jury subpena.

Private A. E. Brown made a statement, following the visit of Bailes and his prisoner. Brown was given a subpena before he left the office of the investigators. Private H. O. Pfalzgraff then appeared to make a statement, but he was not subpenaed.

Privates S. R. Rogers and H. Boese have also received grand jury subpenas, it was learned yeserday.

About noon yesterday a teletype order was received at the First Precinct Station from headquarters, demanding the immediate presence of Lieut. J. H. Lee and Sergt. B. Sheldon and Private F. R. Tierney at the Bureau of Investigation. These three men were off duty at the time and Capt. Holmes was unable to reach them and tell them to report to the Department of Justice investigators. It could not be learned last night whether they were questioned.

Rover Returns.

Lieut. Lee and Sergt. Sheldon are supposed to have been at the First Precinct Station about noon Saturday, August 22, the hour Harker says Precinct Detective James Mostyn and Privates Groome, Lafflin and Burroughs began to give him the third degree, to force a confession from him. These four men are now under suspension.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover returned to Washington yesterday from a vacation. It is understood that he will confer today with Acting Attorney General Thomas D. Thacher and J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, with reference to a suggestion for appointment of a special prosecutor to handle the police brutality charges.

50 Per Cent Cut Held Cotton Hope

Southern Senators Place Primray Emphassi on Crop Reduction.

(Associated Press.)

Reduction of the 1932 cotton acreage by at least 50 per cent was named yesterday by Senator George as one of the primary conditions of relief plans laid before the Farm Board in conferences here by him and other Southern senators.

The Georgia Democrat, who left the Capital last night for his home State, said he had urged the Farm Board to reach a decision promptly "and to adopt any reasonable plan, which it is in a position to execute."

"The Southern senators," George said, "have endeavored to impress upon the board the acute emergency now facing the cotton growers of the South and to urge action without delay. We have presented the problem to the President, to members of the Federal Reserve Bank and to the Farm Board and the matter is now in the hands of the board."

CLAIMS SHIP LINE

PAUL W. CHAPMAN.

FIGHT FOR U.S. LINES SPLITS SHIP BOARD

Negotiations for Disposal May Be Accompanied by Senate Inquiry.

(United Press.)

A wide-open split in the Shipping Board, trouble spot of several past administrations, yesterday threatened to develop over disposal of the United States Lines, largest and most valuable American passenger service.

Powerful political and financial interests were reported lining up in support of the two claimants for the lines, the Roosevelt-International Mercantile Marine and the Chapman-Dollar-Dawson combine, with board commissioners supporting the rival companies too evenly divided to permit of an immediate decision.

Some Shipping Board officials feel that the negotiations may drag on for some time, with the unpleasant prospect of congressional and senatorial inquiries when Congress meets in December.

As developments in the sale of the Leviathan and the ten other liners which comprise the United States Lines fleet stand at present, the International Co., identified with the Morgan-Astor interests, has submitted a high bid of $3,560,000 for mortgages and notes held by the board.

Paul W. Chapman, prominent New York financier and the present owner of the line, has submitted an offer of $3,170,900 to wipe out his indebtedness to the Government, said to be over $11,000,000, remaining from the unpaid original purchase price. Chapman appealed to the Shipping Board for financial assistance last June, but since that time has secured the financial backing of a Pacific Coast combine headed by R. Stanley Dollar and Kenneth D. Dawson.

Chapman is still nominal owner of the United States Lines, and his assent is necessary to a sale to the International Mercantile Marine. This assent he recently refused to give, and he threatens court suit if the ships are sold without his consent.

Some board officials are reported as favoring the foreclosure of the United States Lines' mortgages and the direct sale of the ships to the highest bidder.

However, a majority of the board is opposed to such a radical step, which they believe would add to the growing instability of the shipping situation, brought on by the business depression and the subsequent drop in cargo and passenger revenues.

Moreover, they feel that with the shipping business in its present depressed condition, other companies which owe the board large sums of chase prices and subsequent loans chase prices an dsubsequent loans may have to throw themselves on the mercy of the board, and that foreclosure of the United States Lines would set a dangerous precedent.

Bowie Hunter Killed By His Own Bullet

Edgar Pyles, 27, of Bowie, Md., was accidentally shot below the heart yesterday afternoon while hunting near his home. He was brought to Casualty Hospital, where he died several hours after being admitted.

According to Pyle's story he was shooting birds when a bullet he had fired glanced off a tree and hit him. Prince Georges County authorities are conducting an investigation.

MEXICAN PACT EXPIRES WITH CLAIMS IN AIR

Pleas Seeking Billion Are Undecided on Expiration of Commission.

PROGRESS REPORTED ON EXTENDING WORK

137 U. S. Cases Involving $6,360,000 Have Been Settled Since 1923.

(Associated Press.)

The general Mexican-American Claims Commission expired yesterday, leaving undecided the disposition of nearly a billion dollars in claims before that group and a special commission which was terminated August 17.

Officials here were optimistic current negotiations between the two countries would result in an agreement extending the work of the two groups.

Reports a lump sum settlement would be attempted have been met with the announcement such outside settlement had not been considered in the present discussions and had not been suggested by the State Department.

Progress Is Reported.

Although progress has been reported in the negotiations now under way between Ambassador Clark and Mexican officials looking toward extension of the two commissions, the convention covering the general commission expired yesterday without an agreement having been announced.

The general commission adjourned its last sessions here in June, with approximately 100 cases before it. The cases had been briefed and submitted for hearing. Unsettled claims filed by American citizens total about $258,640,000, and an additional $244,680,000 is represented by unsettled claims filed with the general commission by Mexican citizens.

Awarded $2,600,000.

Under the 1923 convention, which has been renewed twice, 137 American claims, representing $6,360,000 as originally filed, have been decided, in addition to 9 Mexican claims representing originally $320,000.

The 137 American claims were awarded $2,600,000 on which the interest today amounts to approximately $740,000 As awarded, the Mexican claims totaled $39,000. Neither group of claims was paid.

Approximately 1,700 cases originally were filed with both commissions, 800 of them being claims brought to the general commission by Mexican claimants.

Unsettled American claims filed under both conventions aggregated $667,315,000, of which $408,675,000 came before the special commission. Unsettled Mexican claims of $244,800,000 pushed the total claims before both bodies to $911,995,000, as represented by original filings.

Dating Back to 1868.

The general convention covered miscellaneous claims from both countries dating back to 1868, and the special agreement took ten claims by Americans for revolutionary damages between 1910 and 1920.

The special commission, which last met in Mexico last April, has decided eighteen claims, all by Americans, seventeen of which were included in the Santa Isabel case. All were decided against the United States.

Approximately 150 claims were on the special commission's calendar when its convention expired. The total originally filed with the special commission, eliminating duplicates with the general group, was about 3,000 claims.

Man, 73, Kills Husband In Tea Room Triangle

Jackson, N. H., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—James Williams 35, of Long Island City, N. Y., was shot and killed tonight as he sat in an automobile outside a tea room here with his wife and three-year-old son.

Authorities arrested George F. Fernald, owner of the tea room property, on a murder charge. They said he attempted to take his own life after shooting Williams with a rifle which he poked through a window of the tea room. Fernald was angered, police said, because Williams objected to attentions the elderly man paid his wife, a waitress at the tea room.

7,000 Watch Rector Brave St. James' Fire

Minister Makes Three Trips Through Flames to Rescue Sacrament and Holy Vessels; Damage to Edifice Set at $25,000.

Old St. James Episcopal Church, at Eighth street near C street northeast, was ravaged by a three-alarm fire last night, which caused damage estimated at $25,000 while a crowd of approximately 7,000 persons watched the rector of the church salvage the Blessed Sacrament and holy vessels from destruction.

In the height of the flames and blinding smoke the Rev. George W. Atkinson, the rector, thrice entered the flaming edifice, once to remove the Blessed Sacrament from the tabernacle, again to save clerical vestments and a third time to remove valuable chalices, patens, ciboriums and communion plates from the altar.

Proximity of the fire to Casualty Hospital, which is but a short distance away, accelerated speed of engines called. However, nurses and internes moved through the hospital assuring the afflicted that there was no danger.

For the most part the patients were orderly. No hysteria was reported. Their principal reaction to the noise of clanging engines and firemen's shouts seemed to be one of curiosity rather than apprehension.

A painting of the Madonna, upon which Father Atkinson could place no definite value, was damaged by water. Only recently, the clergyman said, he had an artist view the work and was informed that the picture was of great value.

No cause has been laid for the fire by officials. However, Father Atkinson is inclined to attribute it to thieves who had entered the church in the past few weeks in quest of sacramental wine. On one occasion, he said, a half gallon of the wine was stolen. After each visit burned matches were found on the floor.

Since the church closed at 4 o'clock, Father Atkinson believes the thieves entered at night and one of the matches struck by them ignited

RADIO SPECULATION LINKS WJSV TO NBC

National Will Offset WABC Program by Hook-Up to WJZ Schedule.

By ROBERT D. HEINL.

Closely following announcement that the Columbia broadcasting system expects to come into Washington with full-time WABC programs, giving the Capital exactly the same service as New York City, another big surprise in the way of radio news for Washingtonians will probably come within the next week when the National Broadcasting Co. divulges its plans to meet Columbia's move.

It has been learned that within the next month NBC's facilities will have been increased here to the extent of giving Washington full-time WJZ programs as well as those of WEAF. This, with the WABC booster proposition of Columbia, if the permit to try it is granted by the Federal Radio Commission and the experiment works, will bring to us the full-time programs of three of the greatest stations in the country, WABC, WEAF and WJZ, all located in New York City. At present these programs are only being partially received here over Stations WRC and WMAL.

Since no additional wave lengths are available the matter of NBC's additional facilities and how they are to be secured was a matter of considerable speculation yesterday. Because, under the new arrangement WRC would probably handle only WEAF programs, an entirely new outlet would have to be secured for WJZ which brings here such features as "Amos 'n' Andy," Phil Cook and others.

There would then seem to be three ways for WJZ to get in. First by synchronization, identical broadcasting such as is now being done by W3Z and WBAL, Baltimore; second by booster such as Columbia expects to do with WABC, and third by the NBC acquiring one of the local Washington stations in addition to WRC, which it already owns.

Synchronization, in addition to being as yet experimental and not altogether satisfactory, would be excessive in cost. Therefore, it is not believed the NBC people would resort to that until they see how the Baltimore experiment works out. Judging from the comments made when Columbia announced its booster proposition, the NBC officials don't think that practical.

So it would seem that the cheapest and most logical move would be for the National Broadcasting Co. to buy or lease one of the existing local stations, since the latter already have their wavelengths and are going concerns which could be used immediately.

Station WMAL could hardly be considered because it will not be released by Columbia before November 2 and maybe much later, and it is probable the NBC will have its plan in effect long before that. Hence, WJSV or WOL would seem to be the only available stations.

Graf Is Off Africa On Way to Brazil

Dirigible Making 70 Miles an Hour and Is Following Coast.

Casablanca, Morocco, Aug. 30 (U.P.). The Graf Zeppelin, making about 70 miles an hour, flew low off Mazigan at 7:20 o'clock tonight, following the African coast on its journey from Friedrichshafen to Brazil. The big ship was progressing steadily, being more than 320 miles past Gibraltar.

The dirigible commanded by Dr. Hugo Eckener, was attempting a nonstop flight to Natal, on the northeastern corner of the South American continent, rather than making short stops along the route as on its last journey across the Atlantic.

The ship reported a quiet flight to the Mediterranean, which it reached at 4:30 a. m., after a trip down the Rhone valley. It continued over the Mediterranean to the Island of Minorca, in the Balearic Isles, at 9 a. m., and thence to Cape Palos before turning out over the Atlantic.

MARINES HOP CLEAR AS PLANES COLLIDE

Quantico Pair Escapes Severe Injury in National Air Race Crash.

Cleveland, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Two flying marines from Quantico, Va., became members of the Caterpillar Club today when they landed safely in their parachutes at the national air race, after their planes had collided at 1,500 feet.

The marines, Lieut. S. L. H. Sanderson, commander, and Lieut. W. C. Brice, member of Fighting Squadron No. 9, were demonstrating a serpentine formation.

Lieut. Sanderson, known as "Old Sandy," a veteran flier, was slightly bruised on his face. Lieut. Brice was not hurt.

The marine squadron, composed of nine planes, had been demonstrating maneuvers and stunts, about a half mile from the airport grand stand, when two of the planes flew toward each other. Suddenly the left wings of one plane crumpled off, the plane dived and the pilot was seen to jump with his parachute.

It appeared for a moment that the pilot in the other plane had it under control, but later he jumped and the plane fell, striking the cornice of a school house.

Lieut. Sanderson said he jumped when he saw the wings of his plane rip off.

Lieut. Brice said he was dazed for a moment, after the jolt had caused him to strike his head against the cowling of his ship.

Mrs. Phoebe Omlie, Memphis, flashed across the finish line at 2:20 p. m. today, to lead 51 contesting men and women fliers, in the National Air Race Transcontinental Sweepstakes Handicap Derby, which started a week ago from Santa Monica, Calif., to Cleveland.

Heading the list in earned points when the fliers stopped over night in Dayton, it was expected that she had captured victory over the women contestants and probably over the men, though air race officials ex-

Schilling Assails Cooperative's Foes

Commercial Interests Give Misleading Ideas, He Declares.

Watson, Minn., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Commercial interests opposed to cooperative marketing are spreading "much misleading and even malicious propaganda, openly or under cover," W. F. Schilling, of the Federal Farm Board, said today in a speech at a farmers' meeting.

It was not strange, he said, that grain merchants, storage men, speculators and commission houses, for instance, should oppose the board's wheat activities.

Kankakee, Ill., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Agriculture has withstood the economic depression better than many other major American industries, Alexander Legge, former chairman of the Federal Farm Board, said today in an address before a soil and crop association rally.

Man Forced Into Auto, Freed; Motive Unknown

George Grimes, 32 years old, of 330 Eight street southeast, was forced into an automobile by two colored men last night while walking on B street near First street southwest. He was driven to M street near Second street southwest, where the men put him out of the car and, at gun point, told not to look back.

Patrolmen J. C. Kane, E. E. Thompson and D. Boese, of the First Precinct, later arrested Andrew Lowe, 22 years old, colored, of 216 B street northwest, who is said to have admitted the act. He is being held for investigation. No motive was given.

POWERS BARES HORROR STORY OF DEATH ORGY

Two Women and 2 Girls Hanged, One by One, in Garage.

BOY, FORCED TO SEE, KILLED BY HAMMER

Bones From Fire Studied; Steam Shovel Digging Is Proposed.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 30 (A.P.). Harry F. Powers, 45, suave West Virginian who, police said, turned to mass murder as a means of livelihood, added another ghastly chapter late today to the story of his career as a modern-day Bluebeard.

After an hour of questioning, the accused slayer confessed freely to the killing of Mrs. Dorothy Pressler Lemke, 50, of Northboro, Mass., whose body was the fifth to be uncovered in the slime of a sewer trench of Powers' "murder farm" in the hills near this city.

At the same time, police announced, Powers described for the first time the means he employed in killing his other four victims—Mrs Asta Buick Eicher, widow of Park Ridge, Ill., and her three children.

Four of the persons, he revealed, were strangled and then beaten. One died solely from beating with a hammer.

All Five Made Prsoners.

Powers—or Cornelius Pearson, as he often styled himself—told at length of how he lured his women victims to this city through extravagantly-worded advertisements in matrimonial agency periodicals with a view to obtaining their property and bank accounts, and how he slew the five persons, all of them on the same evening.

The two women came to Clarksburg at almost the same time, "about" August 1, Powers was quoted as relating.

Early in the day he took the Illinois widow and her three children to the oddly constructed garage he had built on the outskirts of Clarksburg and made them prisoners in individual sound-proof tile chambers, specially fashioned in the basement of the small, frame building.

Mrs. Lemke arrived from New England later in the day and she in turn was taken to the garage and imprisoned.

Heads Crushed After Hanging.

Then, police said, Powers related how one by one he removed his five victims to the upper floor of the garage, where a rope was suspended from a rafter.

Each of the persons, excepting Mrs. Eicher's son, Harry, 12, was hanged. Feaging that strangulation might not be complete, the slayer then bashed in their heads with a hammer, he was quoted as saying. The Eicher boy, Powers said, was felled with a hammer blow. The five bodies then were buried in the sewer trench beneath the garage, where they were found last week.

The badly decomposed bodies of the Eicher family were uncovered Friday, a day after Powers' arrest here. Mrs. Lemke's body was found last night.

Early today Powers was asked how many persons he had slain. With a shrug of his shoulders he replied quietly, "I don't know."

Later, however, he was told that

12 Saved From Cruiser By Friend's Brave Deed

Milford, Conn., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Rescue vessels from here, their pilots notified by a man who had rowed 2 miles through a raging sea to carry news of his comrades' plight, tonight rescued twelve men who were bailing desperately to keep heir badly leaking cabin cruiser afloat.

The cruiser, the Mars, of Bridgeport, was towed safely to the beach at the Milford Yacht Club, although the swiftly incoming waters had stopped her motors. The thirteen rescued, suffering from exposure and exhaustion, were sent to Bridgeport.

BROOKLYN GUNMEN SHOOT DOWN GIRL

Shots Meant for Stevedore Go Into Street Crowd; Gangsters Flee.

New York, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Gangster bullets raked a street crowded with children in the Red Hook section of Brooklyn late today, felling an 18-year-old girl, while between 100 and 200 smaller children and the target of the shots escaped injury.

The gangsters, who, witnesses said, fired between six and eight shots in all, fled.

The wounded girl is Jennie Ballantino. She was on her way to a moving picture show with five or six other girls and was wounded in the right wrist by a stray bullet. At the hospital it was said she was not seriously wounded.

Police said the shots, fired from a parked sedan, were intended for Joseph Santora, 45, a boss stevedore and longshoreman. He reported to police last night that two men were seeking to extort tribute from him and he had refused to pay. They demanded money if he wanted to continue his trade unmolested, he said. Santora, who escaped the fusillade by dropping prone on the sidewalk, was questioned and then released.

Police said they knew the identity of the two gunmen.

Santora, father of twelve children, has no police record.

The solution of a recent Brooklyn gang killing and a clew to a gunman wanted for killing one child and wounding four others in Harlem rewarded the authorities tonight for their week-end anticrime round-up.

Eleven prisoners were taken, one of them being Ernest Soricelli, former henchman of Arthur Flegenheimer (Dutch Schultz), Bronx beer baron. His story sent twenty detec-

One Dies, One Hurt In Pistol Battle

Trouble Starts After Man Reports Gun Stolen in Dice Game.

Greenville, S. C., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—One man is dead, another is seriously wounded and a third is in jail today as the result of a pistol battle at close range in upper Greenville County late yesterday.

Magistrate C. O. Baker was shot in the abdomen and foot in an exchange of shots with Julius Finlay, colored, whom he killed with five pistol bullets.

Furman Moore, Finlay's companion, was severely beaten by a mob when he and others attempted to carry Finlay's body to his home. He was taken from the mob by officers and lodged in jail. The trouble started after Waddey Talley, colored, went to Magistrate Baker's office at Marietta and reported his pistol had been stolen in a dice game.

U. S. WILL SEEK $1,100,000,000 IN NEW CREDIT

Financing Indicates Jump in Public Debt Without Tax Boost.

INCOME ASSESSMENTS CONTINUE DOWNWARD

Treasury Is $389,000,000 in Hole for Two Months of Fiscal Year.

CUSTOMS REVENUE ONLY FORM TO RISE

Proceeds of Sale to Retire Certificates and Also Run Government.

(Associated Press.)

Already $387,000,000 in the hole although the present fiscal year is but 2 months old, the Treasury last night announced it would seek to raise more than a billion dollars on long-term bond and certificate issues.

Secretary Mellon said the paper would include $800,000,000 worth of bonds to carry 3 per cent interest and to run for 20 to 24 years and $300,000,000 in a certificate issue at 1½ per cent.

The bond issue will be the third of the present calendar year, the Treasury having issued $600,000,000 of that kind of paper in March and another $800,000,000 in June. The new financing indicated to some that the Treasury would follow its policy of increasing the public debt rather than ask tax increases to make up the deficit. The deficit for the last fiscal year was $903,000,000.

Since the new year began receipts have shown a decline of about $11,000,000 under last year while expenditures were about $38,000,000 more for the same number of days up to August 27.

Income Taxes Continue Fall.

Income taxes, which dropped $550,000,000 last year, continued their downward swing and in July and August this year were nearly $10,000,000 less.

"It was last year's sharp decline in income tax receipts that caused Secretary Mellon and Undersecretary Mills to suggest some new basis might be found necessary for the taxation system. Neither, however, has intimated he would recommend such a course to Congress, and previous statements were interpreted by other Treasury workers is indicating that a revision will not be sought until the legislative session begins in December of 1933.

Some belief persisted that despite efforts to reduce expenditures it might be necessary this winter to raise additional revenue.

Both the new bond and certificate issues will be dated September 15. The bonds, which will mature in 1953, will be callable in 1951. The interest on the bonds will be the lowest paid in recent years on that form of securities.

Will Retire Certificate.

Proceeds of the sale will be used to retire $634,000,000 in certificates which mature September 15, to pay $30,000,000 interest on the public debt and to provide funds to operate

Policeman Slays Baker Who Shot Comrade

Vallejo, Calif., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—E. A. Otis, Sacramento baker, was shot to death and a policeman was severely wounded here today in what police described as the climax of an attempt of Otis to slay his estranged wife Ina.

Otis was killed by Policeman W. E. Francis, who fired a bullet into the man's heart after Otis had discharged a shotgun at Policeman Frank L. Hannigan, shattering his left arm. Hannigan also received several bullets in the body, but physicians said he had a chance to live.

Capital Woman Tends Dust Of Marie Antoinette's Kiki

Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld Finds Herself Custodian of Dog's Grave When She Buys Paris Home; Bones There Since 1793.

Paris, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—A little box of dust that was once the shapely limbs of Marie Antoinette's favorite pet, Kiki, the dog, is being reverently tended by a prominent society woman from Washington, D. C., Mrs. Aksel C. P. Wichfeld.

Kiki is buried in Mrs. Wichfeld's Paris back yard at 80 Rue de Lille, where his bones have been reposing since 1793, the year in which the guillotine killed his mistress. Queen Marie's puppy is said to have died of grief only a few days after the death sentence was pronounced upon the unhappy ruler of France.

By orders of the Marquise de Tourzel, to whom Marie Antoinette gave Kiki when she was taken to prison and then transferred to the temple and arraigned before the Revolutionary tribunal, in the event of the dog's death he was to be buried with fitting rites in a grassy spot in the garden.

Showing a typical repugnance for serious matters, the Queen of France adored and pampered the tiny dog and paid more attention to it than she did to state affairs on many occasions. He was the constant playmate of her two sons, and lived a life

Fall Down Steps Is Fatal After Slip on Cake of Soap

Morris Mouranes, 37, Dies in Hospital of Fractured Skull Suffered in Plunge Into Basement; Rescue Squad's Efforts Fail to Revive Him.

A fall down his cellar steps, caused by a cake of soap, resulted fatally last night for Morris Mouranes, 37 years old, of 3603 Warder street northwest, who died in Emergency Hospital a few hours after the fall.

Mourane's wife, Eva, was on the upper floor of their home when she heard the fall. Hurrying to the basement, she found her husband on the floor. The Fire Rescue Squad was summoned and gave him first aid, after which he was removed to the hospital.

Death, according to hospital doctors, was caused by a fractured skull. Tenth Precinct police, who investigated, said they found a cake of soap on the steps, and soap was smeared on the top step of the flight, as if he had slipped upon it.

Mr. Mouranes was a private tutor of Hebrew. He came to this country ten years ago from Russia. He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Shirley, 4 years old, and Anna, 6.

Edward Rosen, a boarder at the Mouranes home, was in Emergency Hospital last night visiting a sick friend when he saw Mouranes in an adjoining bed. It was Rosen's first knowledge of the accident.

EMERGENCY PLANS STUDIED IN BRITAIN

Cabinet to Take Up Program Today; MacDonald Left Without Party.

London, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Members of the new national government spent today studying the completed draft of the British economy program, instead of enjoying their customary week-ends.

The cabinet meets at 4 p. m. tomorrow and the session will mark the beginning of actual work on the plan. Suggested alterations will be discussed and preparations hurried to iron out the proposal for the special session of Parliament, which convenes September 8.

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald, who is spending the week-end at Lossiemouth, Scotland, announced today he would not leave by train for London tonight, but would fly back early tomorrow morning. Favorable reports of flying conditions led the prime minister to decide to make the trip by plane, thereby giving him one more evening of rest in Scotland.

In the meantime the prime minister seems to be a man without a party and if it were not for the present exceptional circumstances he probably would be compelled to resign his post as prime minister. His own constituency at Seaham Harbor repudiated him yesterday, and the last backing from the Labor Party Socialists disappeared. It is generally understood, however, he will carry on with the national government and resign when the present crisis is considered over.

Although the Labor party has turned thumbs down on the prime minister, he is not without a halo among other sections of the population. The Sunday Observer in a brief editorial today headed "Good-by, Mac," says:

"Seaham Harbor may reject the prime minister as Bristol once threw out Mr. Burke. In that case it is so much the worse for Seaham Harbor. His own part of the island ought to be more proud of Mr. Ramsay MacDonald today than of any other Scotsman alive; and, although he probably will take a long rest, after the dissolution, some Scottish constituency ought to elect him without contest or stipulation. His exclusion from parliament is unthinkable and his return is assured, one way or another. England will see to that if Scotland fails."

Malcolm MacDonald, son of the Prime Minister, who is Labor member from the Bassetlaw division of Nottinghamshire was invited to attend the quarterly meeting of the party executive at Warsop Saturday night, but he did not appear. At the close of the meeting it was announced he would be invited to appear for a full executive meeting to explain his attitude and his support of the national government.

The younger MacDonald has announced his support of his father's course.

Economic Benefit From Beer Denied

Antiprohibition View Is Ridiculed in Talk by Editor.

Claims of prohibition opponents that restoration of beer would put a billion dollars annually into the Federal Treasury, and that its manufacture would solve the unemployment problem, were ridiculed by J. Raymond Schmidt, editor of Twentieth Century Progress and lecturer for the International Reform Federation, in an address at the Chevy Chase M. E. Church yesterday morning.

Mr. Schmidt contended that to raise a billion dollars of revenue from the sale of beer that each man, woman and child would have to drink two gallons a day. In regard to unemployment he observed that breweries would employ only 400,000 of the more than 4,000,000 who are unemployed.

Directing his argument at the claim that prohibition causes lawlessness, Mr. Schmidt declared that all these evils would vanish if the wets observed the law. He charged that the wets would bring back the saloon despite their insistence that they don't want it. He described the antiprohibition movement as a rich man's hobby and said that neither Franklin D. Roosevelt nor Al Smith have any chance of becoming President.

Lafayette-Marne Observance Urged

Next Sunday Is Set Aside for Commemoration of French Assistance.

Patriotic bodies, clubs and private citizens throughout the country have been called upon to aid in the observance of Lafayette-Marne Day Sunday, Sept. 6, by the Lafayette Day National Committee, among whose members are Herbert Hoover, George W. Wickersham and Theodore Roosevelt, jr.

As the first battle of the Marne began on Lafayette's birthday in 1914, it has been the practice to celebrate the anniversary of the two at the same time. This is made appropriate by the fact that, as President Hoover has said, "in both instances America incurred an obligation to France and it is a great joy to every American heart to know that we have been able in some measure to requite this obligation."

The committee requests that the American flag and the French Tricolor, which Lafayette designed, be displayed together in public places.

Driver Held in Crash On Wisconsin Avenue

George Jones, colored, 31 years old, of 913 Twenty-Sixth street northwest, was charged with reckless driving at the Seventh Police Precinct last night, after it is alleged the automobile he was driving collided with another machine at Wisconsin avenue and M street northwest.

Police said the other machine was operated by Warren L. Garrett, 16 years old, of 3039 Q street northwest. Both cars were badly damaged, but the drivers escaped injury.

Wets List 3,000,000 Names.

A petition bearing 3,000,000 signatures of Illinois residents asking for modification of the Volstead law to permit the manufacture and sale of light wines and beer will be presented to Congress at the next session by the Congressional Districts Modification League, it was announced yesterday by the league's headquarters here.

Wort Industry Steals Wine-Brick's Thunder

By JOHN J. DALY

WAS ist dat?

In other words, what is Wort?

Wort, it seems from reports coming out of Detroit, is about to throw the Nation out of gear.

In fact, Wort has been brought to the attention of Prohibition Director Woodcoock.

A plant belonging to the class Hepaticae, wort is really moss that grows down by the river; but—and here is the nub of the story—if you wander about the wort fields long enough and study nature intently, you learn that wort is the basic of beer.

Believe it or not, and strange as it may seem, a huge manufacturing plant has been started near the Ford works to make the Nation wort-conscious.

Up to now, the wine brick has held the center of the stage. Here comes a rival. Wort seeks the limelight.

* * * *

INFORMATION reaches prohibition headquarters that 22 wort plants are flourishing in the Detroit area. They are capable of producing quantities sufficient to make more than 5,000 barrels of beer a day—if used for that purpose.

Just like the wine brick, a wad of wort is innocent enough in its pristine state; but by the commingling of water and yeast and the workings of nature, a great transformation overcomes the plant.

Woebegone Americans, something is always happening to us—like wort.

It seems a shame!

Just when the Nation is adjusting itself to a new and higher life, individuals of unknown antecedents come along with their wine bricks and their wort.

Wort, of course, is an innocent party to any wrongdoing. It is used primarily, and legitimately, in the baking industry. Since the new discovery, however, the bakers of Detroit and vicinity are having difficulty getting out their quota of daily bread.

* * * *

TO use the technical definition, wort is the unfermented infusion of malt, which when fermented, becomes beer.

If we could only legislate out of existence the process of fermentation! It has such demoralizing effects. First, it was the wine brick. Now it's wort.

You can hear the renegades sing, "My country, 'tis of thee, sweet land of liberty!"

There is a difference, however, between liberty and license. Who has a license to sell wine bricks? Who has a license for wort?

On the open market today they are selling the wort condenser—an apparatus for saving the vapor arising from wort in brewing.

They are selling wort-coolers—shallow tanks in which wort is cooled. Why wort should be cooled, only a mother understands.

Advertised also are wort filters, used in brewing, to draw off the clear liquid from the mash after boiling, the wort mash.

What are we coming to, and whither are we drifting? The noble experiment seems to have turned the Nation into a chemical laboratory.

There ought to be a law!

7,000 WATCH MINISTER BRAVE CHURCH FIRE TO SAVE VESSELS

the closet in the sacristy, where the fire evidently originated.

Father Atkinson was summoned from his home, 2800 Thirty-fifth street northwest, by Mrs. Rachel Haviland, an attendant at the rectory, which adjoins the church. With him came Father Edward N. McKinley, chaplain of the Sisters of St. Ann, of Kingston, N. Y., who was visiting Father Atkinson.

As the two clergymen arrived the crowd was gazing in awe at a crucifix mounted near the top of the church which was illumined by the spotlights from fire engines. Firemen were clambering about the flaming roof as smoke and flames writhed about the crucifix but left it untouched.

The crowd gave way as Father Atkinson moved toward the church. A few firemen with him, he entered a side door. The firemen, spotlights in hand, crouched low to avoid the smoke as Father Atkinson resolutely moved to the altar and removed The Host.

The crowd shifted in awe and admiration as he moved toward the rectory with the Blessed Sacrament. Few words were said. Men removed their hats. Again he appeared and went into the church, this time to remove the vestments. With him was Father McKinley. Once more they entered the place for the sacramental vessels.

But a scant portion of the crowd witnessed the acts of the clergyman, because the door from the rectory and the side door of the church are only 20 feet apart.

Hospital Attaches Discover Fire.

The fire was discovered by Dr. William E. Bowman, a staff surgeon at Casualty Hospital, and Malin Ellis, an ambulance driver, who sent in an alarm at 9:03. Three minutes later another alarm sounded and at 9:25 Fire Chief George W. Watson sent in a third alarm.

After the fire attained headway it seemed to move through the walls and up to the roof. A crucifix suspended from the ceiling crashed to the flooring when its fastenings became loosed.

Private J. E. Palsgiova, attached to No. 1 Truck Co., was slightly cut on the hand when struck by falling slate. He did not require hospital treatment.

Ancient Reredos Spared.

A fifteenth century reredos which is an ornamental screen behind the altar, and which was painted by an Italian artist, was untouched by the flames. The hand-carved altar also escaped damage.

The church was erected 55 years ago and is of the older Episcopal edifices in the city. It is constructed of gray stone. Father Atkinson has been pastor of the church for five years and recently returned from a vacation in Italy.

Reserves from two precincts and additional traffic officers were called to keep the crowd in check and untangle traffic which was snagged for blocks in all directions.

Unusual Funeral For Free Thinker

Nonreligious Service Is Held Over Body of Mrs. Van Rooyen.

A "Free Thought funeral" was conducted for Mrs. Hannah Van Rooyen, wife of Alex Van Rooyen, at the Bundy funeral parlors, 621 Florida avenue northwest, yesterday afternoon by Linn A. E. Gale, president of the Washington Open Forum, at the request of the surviving husband, who is a free thinker and a member of the forum. No religious services of any kind characterized the occasion.

Mrs. Van Rooyen died at her home at Buena Vista, Md., some days ago, aged 55 years. Her husband, a sister and a brother survive. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery.

The funeral program included two solos, "I've Done My Work," and "The End of a Perfect Day," by W. R. Williams, with a duet by Mrs. Laws and Miss Cavanagh. Mr. Gale in his address declared the deceased woman "was always an unswerving free thinker who consistently opposed superstition and who approached death without fear or flinching."

SPECIAL AGENTS RUSH WORK IN PROBE OF BEATING CHARGE

tice have declined to comment on the likelihood of a special prosecutor, appearing to feel that the question is one for Mr. Rover to decide. They would undoubtedly comply with the request to name some one outside of the District attorney's office should Mr. Rover make the request.

Expect 40 Witnesses.

Appointment of a special prosecutor would be in line with the general policy of removing the inquiry from local authorities. While the District attorney's office is under close Federal supervision, officials there are necessarily in close touch with police. Appointment of a special prosecutor would relieve Mr. Rover and his aids of any possible embarrassment in presenting charges against the Police Department.

Approximately 40 witnesses will be called before the grand jury in the Harker case. Many of these are policemen from the First Precinct. Immediately afer Harker made his charges Inspector Louis Stoll and Capt. Holmes took 24 statements, declaring that the prisoner was not roughly handled, from men who were on duty while Harker was in custody.

More Brutality Alleged.

Still another case of alleged rough handling by police was reported to The Post yesterday.

Walter Hickman, of Berryville, Va., in a letter to The Post, charges he was arrested by a policeman from the Eleventh Precinct. Hickman declares he was arrested without a warrant, and was slapped in the face several times when he protested.

"The police will knock your block off any time you talk back," the letter concludes.

A communistic plot was seen in the charges against the police by Gen. Amos A. Fries, president of the American Security League.

Sees Communism Danger.

While the American people are interested in the investigation of alleged brutalities in examining criminals and suspects in the District of Columbia, and the investigation is proper, "it is important to remember that our police departments, our courts, our Labor Department and our Department of Justice are all attacked from time to time by representatives of international communism," he asserted.

"From the day Karl Marx wrote his first edition of the Communist Manifesto, nearly 100 years ago, the attack of Communists on our law-enforcing bodies has been recognized as one of the most effective means of preparing a Nation for communistic revolution, such as has been carried out in Russia," Gen Fries declared.

Citizens Protest Tactics In Arrest of Drunk Man

Early last night The Post received several telephone calls from persons who said an aged colored cab driver, arrested on a charge of drunkenness, had been bodily thrown into the Second Precinct patrol wagon, arousing considerable indignation among a crowd which had gathered. The incident, said to have occurred in front of 2100 Nineteenth street northwest, was investigated by a Post reporter, who was told by Lieut. Joseph W. Pierson, in charge last night at the Second Precinct, that officers involved in the arrest and placing of the man in the police van denied that undue roughness was used.

The man arrested, Arthur Williams, 50, colored, 1113 R street northwest, was said to have been in an exceedingly intoxicated condition, necessitating his being practically lifted into the patrol wagon. Lieut. Pierson said that a newspaper reporter had signified his willingness to testify that no unwarranted rough treatment had been used.

CHINESE IN DROVES FLEE FROM SONORA

Ordered Out by September 1, Many Embark for Other Latin Countries.

Mexico City, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Reports from Mazatlan, Sinaloa, today said that an exodus of Chinese from Sonora has begun in response to orders from the local authorities to leave the State by September 1.

Trains arriving at Mazatlan today from Sonora were crowded with Chinese merchants and farmers, who have been obliged to liquidate their businesses as a consequence of an anti-Chinese campaign against which the Chinese minister here, Sam Young, has made urgent protests.

Mazatlan dispatches today said State authorities in Sinaloa, which borders on Sonora and where an anti-Chinese campaign also is in progress, have requested nationalist committees in charge of the campaign not to carry out a threatened boycott of Chinese stores.

Most of the Chinese leaving Sonora by way of Sinaloa are embarking at Mazatlan, the majority of them going to South American countries. Chinese merchants in Sinaloa are withdrawing their deposits from Mazatlan banks preparatory to leaving the country also.

Little Promise Is Shown In Latin Auto Commerce

(Associated Press.)

A round-up of second-quarter automotive conditions published yesterday by the Commerce Department showed little of promise in Latin America.

A compilation of data by George P. Viaud, of the automotive division, showed sales in Cuba of medium priced cars, listed at the factory at between $1,200 and $2,000, to be the most seriously affected by the depression. Viaud said he found small demand for used cars in Cuba, with stocks generally in excess of demand.

Pneumatic auto tire exports to Latin America dropped a million and a half dollars during the first six months of this year, compared with the same period of 1930. Figures made public by P. W. Parker, acting chief of the Commerce Department rubber division, showed that during the first half of 1931 the United States sent to Latin America 241,601 tires, worth $2,292,331. Corresponding figures for 1930 were 384,235 tires valued at $3,834,595.

Assassination Attempt Denied.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—A bricklayer, declared insane, wounded three soldiers with a knife and was himself gravely wounded when he attempted to enter Government House today. It was denied the attack was an attempt on the life of President Uriburu, who had just left the building.

Freighter Aground at Culebra.

Balboa, Canal Zone, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—A breakdown in the main engines of the Japanese freighter Kirishima Maru caused the vessel to go aground at Culebra Cut today, but it was pulled off and towed to Cristobal docks for repairs. The ship is on its maiden voyage from the Far East to New York.

Chilean Disorders Ordered Halted.

Santiago, Chile, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—After one person was killed and several injured in numerous small clashes over the week-end, Provincial Governor Julio Bustamente issued an order today to police to use "energetic" measures to halt further disorders.

Buenos Aires, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Dr. Lisandro de la Torre was nominated today as the presidential candidate of the Progressive Democrats to run in the November 8 elections.

"Corpse" in Auto Proves Sleeping Man

An automobile seen early yesterday in a gas station at Thirteenth and K streets northwest, which was believed to be carrying a dead man, was traced last night by police and the "corpse" was found to be a sleeping man in the rear seat.

A taxi driver first saw the "corpse" when the machine drove into the station to get gasoline. He notified police, who in turn broadcast a lookout. The license plates were listed to Eugene T. Dickinson, of 1228 I street northwest, president of the F. & W. Grand Stores and the Livingstone Academy of Art. Mr. Dickinson declared he left Washington about the time his car was seen, bound on a fishing trip with a friend.

BROOKLYN GUNMEN SHOOT DOWN GIRL

tives on a hurried quest for Vincent Coll, suspected of having committed the "Little Italy" child shootings. Police and newspapers have offered rewards of $30,000 for conviction of the gangster responsible for the Harlem child's death.

The confessions of a band of youths blasted out of a Brooklyn apartment with riot guns fixed the guilt in the shooting a week ago of three men placed against a slaughter-house wall. It established, police said, that the gangsters on that occasion killed the wrong man. They wounded two others now under arrest.

Soricelli, when arrested today, had two heavy-caliber revolvers in his pockets and detectives said he admitted he was "out gunning" for the Harlem suspect to avenge the killing of his brother, John Soricelli, also a "Dutch Schultz" man.

"If you had waited a little longer you might have got 'Irish,' too," police said he told them. The officers said "Irish" was Vincent Coll's gang sobriquet.

Soricelli was held in $1,000 bail for carrying concealed weapons.

Four of the seven men seized in yesterday's Brooklyn apartment raid confessed to police that they "dropped" Angelo Ceranni, Murray Leonardi and Anthony Ferrara last Sunday in an imitation of the Chicago St. Valentine's Day massacre.

Police said the admission disclosed a holdup band led by Barney Wolfson, of which Ceranni had been a member. Ceranni, the gunmen said, had boasted he could "muscle" into Wolfson's power and was ordered "put on the spot." The confessions said Wolfson and three others, Harry Leibowitz, Philip Rennert and Irving Schneider, found Ceranni, with Leonardi and Ferarra, the latter two strangers to them. They intended to kill Ceranni but instead slew Ferrara and wounded Ceranni and Leonardi.

3 Mayors Will Open Oyster's New Season

New York, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Mayors of three cities will open the oyster season Tuesday by sampling Bluepoints on the half shell.

Mayor James Curley of Boston, Mayor Harry Mackey of Philadelphia, and acting Mayor Joseph McKee of New York, say they are ready to eat a dozen if necessary. The ceremony is patterned after the one at Colchester, England, where for the last 1,500 years the lord mayor has toasted the king with gin, gingerbread and an oyster at the opening of the season.

Gin and gingerbread will be omitted by the American mayors.

IDAHO ARMED FORCE BATTLES 'FIREBUGS'

Forest Blazes Are Blamed on Jobless Seeking Work Fighting Flames.

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Armed troops today inaugurated martial law in four Idaho counties, seeking to quell an outbreak of incendiarism in forest areas which Gov. C. Ben Ross blamed on jobless would-be fire fighters.

Martial law in the area was declared by Gov. Ross last night, when National Guard and forest officials expressed fear that fire fighters being rapidly released as existing blazes were controlled, would light other forests in order to give themselves employment.

About 60 men were discharged from crews in the Placerville-Grimes Pass area today as foresters became confident the wide fire line would hold.

In declaring martial law, Gov. Ross said drastic measures were necessary. He said martial law may be extended later to three other counties.

Fires in the area under surveillance have razed two small towns, destroyed mines, timber and cabins and burned at least two men to death.

When martial law went into effect at 8 a. m. today, roads into the timber areas were closed to all persons except those showing permits. Armed patrols were distributed over road junctions in the forests and soldiers were detailed to the main fire fronts.

There was a possibility that additional troops might be called into the field, although 200 already were out.

Fire lines were holding at all points except in Valley County, north of McCall. The fire there was burning viciously but was being held to a slow progress toward the town.

A blaze charged to a fire bug near Centerville was reported under control. Incendiary fires in High Valley, in the Payette Forest, were out of control, but considerably checked by 300 fire fighters.

MORE THAN BILLION SOUGHT IN U. S. BONDS

the Government until December 15, when $994,000,000 in Treasury bonds and certificates will fall due.

Along with skidding income tax returns, the Treasury in July and August collected $13,000,000 less in miscellaneous internal revenue than last year. Customs revenue was the only form of Government income to show an increase, totaling $67,854,500, as compared with $53,927,364 in the same two months last year. Treasury officials, though, said the 1930 figures were almost worthless for comparative purposes. In July, August and September of 1930 customers' receipts dropped about $27,000,000, just after the new tariffs went into effect. The June, 1930, collections were greater than for any one month on record.

While the Treasury has not announced that it has abandoned its plan for funding the $8,000,000,000 first and fourth Liberty loans outstanding, which can be called in 1932 and 1933, there have been no indications that it plans to do so in the near future. About $1,900,000,000 of the first Liberty loan is outstanding at interest rates of 3½, 4 and 4½ per cent, while $6,268,218,450 of the fourth is drawing 4½ per cent.

Refunding of the Liberty loan issues would save considerable if the new issues carried as low rates as the bonds announced yesterday.

ANTITRUST LAWS STUDIED BY HOOVER

Oil Merger Proposals Dealt With in Justice Department Report.

Luray, Va., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—President Hoover was advised today of the effects of the antitrust law on the existing business situation, particularly with reference to the oil industry.

In his week-end workshop and playground at Camp Rapidan, the Chief Executive received another of those reports he has been too busy to get in Washington—this one from Assistant Attorney General John Lord O'Brian, who has been investigating trusts and mergers for the Justice Department.

O'Brian's inquiry has been conducted with the usual judicial secrecy, but it was understood to have recently been concerned with proposed large-scale oil mergers.

Reports have been current in financial circles that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and the Standard of California are considering a consolidation, to form the world's largest oil company. Other reports hint at the possibility of a consolidation involving the Sinclair Consolidated, Prairie Oil & Gas Co., Prairie Pipe Line, Tidewater Associated Co. and the Rio Grande Oil Co.

These companies are said to be suffering from competition of the Royal Dutch Shell in the United States and from Shell and Russian concerns in the world market.

Mr. Hoover has frequently suggested that the antitrust laws might well be modified to prevent what he calls "wasteful competition."

of luxury and ease as an acknowledged court favorite.

It was only when Marie Antoinette was taken to the Conciergerie, with the presentiment of her tragic end, that she relinquished Kiki into the keeping of Mme. de Tourzel, who was the children's governess, and bade her bury the little animal with due reverence in the event of his demise.

Mrs. Wickfeld became custodian of the tiny grave with its now sunken tombstone of marble, when she purchased an impressive mansion in the Louis XV style in Paris for her residence during her sojourns to France. The inscription on the small white monument is simply "Kiki."

Before Mrs. Wichfeld's marriage to Ansel C. P. Wichfeld, she was Mrs. Moore, the former Mabelle F. Swift of Washington, D. C. She is well known among Americans in France and throughout Europe. She has two sons, Clarence and Lloyd, the former being an American composer who travelled in the Sudan during the past winter to collect new musical motifs for his lyrics.

$75,000 IS SEIZED IN RACE-BET FIGHT

Sheriff Uses Machine Guns to Protect Money in Kentucky Raid.

Frankfort, Ky., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Attorney General J. W. Cammack, crusader against race track betting in the State that gives the world most of its thoroughbreds, has filed another suit against a race track which probably will keep him busy during the last four months of his term of office.

Secret operations last night by Sheriff R. C. Soaper, of Henderson County, who, with sixteen deputies armed with machine guns, stormed the pari-mutuel betting sheds at Dade Park revealed another legal attack was under way against another jockey club. The machine guns, however, were to protect the track's money, not to frighten embattled employes.

The latest legal maneuver inaugurated by the attorney general was not designed to stop betting, however. He was taking steps to enforce a 4-year-old judgment for back taxes of $64,000 plus interest which brought the amount to $80,000 against the Dade Park Jockey Club.

Waits Proper Time.

The attorney general waited until the Dade Park race meeting was well under way when he knew a large sum of money would be stored at the track to enforce the judgment.

When the first attachment was issued in 1927, Henderson County's sheriff, then a woman, Mrs. Francis Holt, was forced to report "no visible prosperity since racing was not in progress and no money was found.

After Sheriff Soaper had seized $75,000 in cold cash last night, James C. Ellis, president of the Dade Park Jockey Club, posted a personal forthcoming bond for the amount and the cash was released.

Betting to Continue.

An attachment for $65,000 against the club's bank account previously had been served at Owensboro. Mr. Ellis, a millionaire oil operator, announced the suit would not interfere with the racing meeting now in progress.

The lateness of the attempt to enforce the judgment may be laid to the fact Attorney Cammack hitherto had been occupied with a weightier suit, in which he attempted to collect $1,000,000 from operators of race tracks at Churchill Downs and Latonia and sought forfeiture of their charters. This action charged violation of the State's anti-gambling laws, but the Court of Appeals upheld the pari-mutuel betting law and recently denied the attorney general's plea for a rehearing. Hence Dade Park's late summer meeting was the first opportunity Cammack had to try to collect when the collecting was good.

SHADES of the flying wedge! The forward pass was still unborn and the gridiron measured 110 yards when this collection of football players represented the Georgetown varsity team in 1889.

Forty-three years ago, the football headgear hadn't come into use. The boys had great faith in their bushy pates when there was heavy work to be done. End runs were a rarity. It was plug, plug, plug at the center of the line and through the guards with off-tackle plays called only occasionally. They moved the ball down the field in mass formation and it was no game for the weakling.

Roll neck sweaters were the thing. And skin tight leather jackets that laced up to the neck as seen in the picture. But don't laugh. The Fordham varsity of 1930 shed its woolen jerseys and went back to the same skinfight jackets in the belief that they made the ball carrier more elusive.

WORK GROUP FAVORS GUARANTEE ON JOBS

California Plan Is Seen as Way to Expand Nation's Spending.

(Associated Press.)

An employment stabilization program now in operation in California, a prominent feature of which is work assurance to wage earners, yesterday drew the official indorsement of President Hoover's unemployment relief organization

Proposals for guaranteeing work to those now employed, in order to encourage spending, have been advanced from many quarters. The American Federation of Labor has urged adoption of the plan the United States Chamber of Commerce has been studying it, and President Hoover has indicated his sympathy with it.

Fred C. Croxton, assistant director of the President's relief organization, lauded the "soundness and practicability, from the standpoint of business management," of the California plan, which was sponsored by the State Chamber of Commerce employment stabilization committee.

450 Firms Support Plan.

Mr. Croxton said active support of the plan by 456 California business firms was evidence of its worth.

"The sincerity of purpose with which California business men have backed California's program is an outstanding indication of the earnestness with which industry is facing its own problem," Mr. Croxton said.

"California's program has resulted directly in the retention of many thousands of workers, with all of the incidental advantages of an increased state of morale among employes and the resultant acceleration of buying power."

He made public a digest of the plan prepared by Chairman Selah Chamberlain of the California Chamber of Commerce committee, which was recommended for use by all business concerns as far as practicable. One recommendation was:

Would Revive Purchasing.

"Give all wage earners now on the pay roll every reasonable assurance of the safety of their jobs; in order to relieve their fear of being added to the unemployed, and to revive their normal purchasing activities."

Other recommendations included rotation of employment to distribute work; holding lay-offs to a minimum by elimination of overtime; concentration of selling efforts on most profitable lines; reduction of seasonal activities; doing maintenance work in slack periods; exchange of labor between plants.

In accordance with the program of the President's relief organization, the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department yesterday issued a statement urging young people to remain in school during the unemployment crisis.

103,000 Children Get Permits.

The bureau said that despite the shortage of jobs, reports from 23 States and 40 cities showed that more than 103,000 children between 14 and 15 years of age received certificates permitting them to leave school for work during 1930.

"These 103,000 children entered jobs which might have been available for older persons without employment, had the children remained in school," the bureau said, adding:

"Comparatively few of the children whose school ties are once broken go back to school. Reduction of child labor, with its corollary, extended education, is urged, not merely as an aid to the unemployment situation, but because of the advantages to boys and girls themselves."

BISHOP ASSAILS NYE INQUIRY AS 'FISHING'

Statement Claims Senator Planned to Hold Probe During His Absence.

London, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, in a statement issued here today, charged the Senate campaign expenditures investigating committee with "deliberately" deciding to hold its recent hearings in his absence.

The bishop also charged that the committee, which is investigating expenditures in the national campaign of 1928, was conducting "a fishing expedition to secure, if possible, some evidence of criminal conduct on my part." His statement follows:

"First, the adjournment of the Senate investigating committee until October flatly contradicts the previous statement made by the committee that the statute of limitations made an August committee meeting necessary. Although I notified the committee in May that official church duties required my presence in Europe from August 10 to September 20, it deliberately decided to hold the meeting in my absence. It is now evident it could have been deferred until my return.

"Second, the testimony given before the committee clearly indicates it was not for the purpose of remedial legislation, as claimed in the hearing in the District court, but the hearing was a fishing expedition to secure, if possible, some evidence of criminal conduct on my part, thus illegally assuming grand jury functions.

Denies Congress' Jurisdiction.

"Third, all money expended by anti-Smith committees, or by myself personally, was to defeat the Smith presidential electors, who, the Supreme Court has declared, are State officials, hence the provision concerning same in the Federal corrupt practices act is unconstitutional, therefore null and void, and Congress has no jurisdiction over such expenditures. However, Miss Burroughs, treasurer of the headquarters committee of anti-Smith Democrats, did send sworn reports to the clerk of the House of Representatives of all receipts and expenditures. Not one dollar was spent for the election of congressmen or senators.

"Fourth, all money not reported by Miss Burroughs as treasurer which passed through my hands was expended in the Virginia State campaign exclusively to defeat the Smith presidential electors and concerning such State expenditures no report has ever been required by law or precedent. I learned a year later that at the request of Senator Steiwer the Virginia State Smith Democratic committee did send a statement, unsworn and unitemized except the lump sum for general purposes and the amount for each congressional district. I gave an exactly similar statement to the press in June, 1930, of the expenditure of the Jameson contribution of $48,300.

Sent $5,000 to Carolina.

"Fifth, I can not recall any correspondence or conversation with Chairman Huston concerning the transmission of a check to the North Carolina anti-Smith Democrats.

"I did write Chairman Frank McNinch and sent $5,000 with the agreement it would be refunded later, if possible, but when it was not refunded it was recorded in the supplementary report by Miss Burroughs to the clerk of the House.

"Sixth, I must emphasize again I have never opposed a grand jury investigation if the Department of Justice decided the law and facts warranted such a procedure. But I have insisted, and shall continue to insist, that my rights as a citizen are infringed upon by the Senate committee, which has no jurisdiction over the election of presidential electors, but which can introduce entirely irrelevant testimonies concerning my private affairs, with no power to protect my rights such as regular court procedure would guarantee."

ANGLICANS ADVANCE CHURCH UNION PLAN

Progress With Old Catholic Churches Is Described by English Primate.

London, Aug 30 (U.P.).—A program for reunion of the Church of England with other denominations was advanced today under the guidance of the Most Reverend and Right Honorable Cosmo Gordon Lang, Archbishop of Canterbury.

An announcement at Lambeth Palace, residence of the archbishop, as primate of all England, said a joint commission of the Anglican communion and old Catholic churches had met at Bonn in July and agreed on three points which were considered important steps toward reunion.

The joint commission, appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Archbishop of Utrecht, was authorized by the Lambeth bishops' conference of 1930, which considered suggestions for unification of various denominations on a wide scale.

The three points agreed upon were:

1. To recognize mutually the catholicity and independence of the two churches.

2. Each communion will admit members of the other communion to participate in sacraments.

3. Neither church will necessarily adopt the customs or habits of devotion of the other.

The importance of the agreement with the old Catholic Church, which was formed by Roman Catholics who refused to accept the decrees of the Vatican council of 1870 defining the dogma of papal infallibility, was emphasized by the announcement a week ago that plans for unification of the Anglican church with the Eastern orthodox churches were improved as a result of the visit of the Archbishop of Canterbury to Palestine last spring.

A joint doctrinal commission representing the Anglican communion and the Eastern churches is scheduled to meet at Lambeth Palace on October 15 to prepare a joint statement showing the theological points on which the two churches are agreed.

The GIRL About Town

MY morning mail brought an invitation from Mrs. Thomas F. Logan to visit her at Montauk Point, where Fred Britten is mobilizing the Navy Away from the grande dames of Newport. DENNIS TO BE BURIED AT HOME TOMORROW

Body of Tariff Commission Member Is on Way From Summer Residence.

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—The body of Alfred Pearce Dennis, 62-year-old Democratic member of the United States Tariff Commission, who threw himself into the sea at his Bailey Island summer home near here, was to be placed aboard a train tonight for Princess Anne, Md., his birthplace.

Despondency, attributed to ill health, is believed to have caused the prominent educator and Government official to take his life. Members of his family found his body early yesterday on the sand, a quarter mile from the house. A medical examiner said it was suicide by drowning.

His widow, two sons, Alfred and John, and Mr. Dennis' brother, Samuel K. Dennis, of Baltimore, Md., arranged to accompany the body tonight to Boston and thence to Princess Anne where funeral services will be held.

They said he had been in poor physical condition for some time, coming here in the hope rest would prove beneficial. He gave no indication of suicidal tendencies, they said.

Mr. Dennis was appointed to the tariff commission in March, 1925, by President Coolidge, and was named vice chairman two months later. He continued as a member under the Hoover administration.

Funeral services for Mr. Dennis will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Presbyterian Church at Princess Anne, Md.

RADIO SPECULATION FORESEES NBC OPERATING THROUGH WJSV

Owing to the fact that the latter broadcasts with considerably lower power, a good guess would be that WJSV, using 10,000 watts and one of the most powerful stations in this part of the country, might soon blossom out under NBC control. Though WOL is deficient in power it has a better wave than WJSV. None the less, with a less effective wave and higher power WJSV is reported to be heard in many States and as far away as Porto Rico and Cuba, despite the fact that it is sometimes hard to dial in all parts of Washington.

In this respect, WJSV, whose transmitter is located at Mount Vernon Hills, Va., finds itself in the same position as several of the large Chicago stations, which have no difficulty in reaching such remote States as Wyoming and Colorado, and even Quebec in Canada, but because of the steel in the skyscrapers and hotels can not be heard in certain parts of Chicago.

Nor is the rivalry between Columbia and the NBC likely to end with the latter simply meeting the program expansion plans. It became known yesterday that Columbia, which already has luxurious studios and offices in the new Shoreham Building, if the Radio Commission O. K.'s its booster entry of WABC programs into Washington, proposes to build new and larger studios here at a cost of from $78,000 to $100,000.

As long as two years ago William S. Paley, president of Columbia, expressed to this writer the desire of having a layout here equaling the importance and dignity of the Capital of the United States. M. H. Aylesworth, president of the NBC, also declared to this writer that the best is none too good for Washington.

Mr. Aylesworth wanted to put up a 50,000 watt station half way between here and Baltimore to serve both cities. Following the above-mentioned conversation he moved the studios downtown from Fourteenth street and Park road northwest, and fitted out those in the National Press Building which, at the time, were the last word for a plant of that size.

Mr. Paley, however, was up against a greater obstacle in not being able to purchase Station WMAL from M. A. Leese. If this problem is now to be successfully solved by the WABC booster station, it is believed that the Columbia president will lose no time in carrying out his idea of giving Washington as fine broadcasting studios as any in the United States.

And if this is done, it is very safe to predict that Mr. Aylesworth will endeavor to go him one better, because the rivalry between the two companies has been very keen in New York, Chicago, Cleveland and other cities and it is only natural to suppose that both will make every effort for supremacy here, where they are under the eyes of the President, Congress and the Federal Radio Commission, to say nothing of a very select and discriminating public.

China Dyke Crash Toll Is Uncertain

Estimate of 250,000 Dead Is Believed by Airmen to Be Exaggerated.

Shanghai, Monday, Aug. 31 (A.P.).—Tragic uncertainty still veiled today the extent of the disaster in Kiangsu Province, where eight miles of dikes along the Grand Canal collapsed, although an aerial survey led authorities to believe an early Chinese estimate vastly exaggerated the number of deaths.

Nevertheless it was still feared that many hundreds, perhaps thousands, died in Kaoyu and other nearby cities when dikes collapsed last Tuesday and Wednesday while in the countryside villages perhaps even a greater toll was taken.

First incomplete reports of deaths in Kiangsu Province were received as comparatively stable conditions returned to the Wuhan cities of Hankow, Hanyang and Wuchang, where, however, water from the Yangtze still inundated the streets.

The Wuhan gendarmerie headquarters estimated that 250,000 persons drowned or succumbed to disease, starvation or exposure in the three latter cities. The figures may be accepted as official and comparatively reliable.

The gendarmerie census showed that 163,000 houses either collapsed or were ruined past repair, rendering 782,000 persons, half the population of the three cities, homeless and destitute. This total was lessened by deaths and the evacuations of those able to flee but 500,000 remain there destitute and helpless.

President Is Attacked On Depression Efforts

(Associated Press.)

Representative Nelson (Demrocat), Missouri, in a statement issued yesterday through the Democratic national committee, said President Hoover is "strangely silent" on recent acts of the Farm Board and the presidential veto of the Wagner unemployment bill, and that his efforts to combat the depression and relieve unemployment have not, as far as anybody has been able to observe, helped business or prevented unemployment from increasing steadily until it now has reached an appalling figure unparalleled in our history."

Woman Overcome by Gas.

Mrs. Emma Tinor, 33 years old, of 504 G street northeast, was treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday for gas poisoning. She was brought to the hospital from her home in a Casualty ambulance. Police were unable to say whether she was accidentally overcome.

BLUEBEARD BARES HORRORS IN DETAILS OF MURDER ORGY

a gang of prisoners from the county jail had been taken out to the "murder farm" to dig for more bodies. The slayer smiled faintly and exclaimed:

"Let them go. Let them dig up the whole farm. They'll not find any more out there."

Powers chatted with his fellow-prisoners throughout the day and for a while played poker, with matches as the stakes.

His wife, Luella, and her sister, Belle Strother, who have been declared by the confessed killer to be innocent of any complicity in his crimes, were permitted to return home today after being held for questioning.

Although Powers fixed "about August 1" as the date of the five killings, it was disclosed tonight that Mrs. Eicher apparently was alive on that date.

Police received word from Illinois that the woman purchased silverware from Frank Rasmussen, Chicago, and received a receipt for $6.75 on August 1.

Search around the suburban garage for additional bodies continued tonight, predicated, presumably on evidence that over a period of years Powers had corresponded with hundreds of matrimonially-inclined women in virtually every section of the Nation, and on the discovery of bones in the ruins of a small cottage which adjoins the garage.

The cottage, as well as the land on which it and the garage were built, is owned by Mrs. Powers. It was destroyed recently by an unexplained fire. Bones found late yesterday near the chimney of the dwelling were turned over to experts to determine whether they are of humans.

A bank book and letters which aided in indentification of Mrs. Lemke were also found near the scene of the fire.

Fresh Mounds Draw Diggers.

Mrs. Lemke, according to word from Northboro, left the Massachusetts town last July in the company of a man identified from newspaper photographs as Powers. She married Albert Lemke in Worcester, Mass., in 1914, and lived with him in St. Paul, Minn., for ten years. The husband is reported to be living in the Minnesota city.

The search for additional bodies in the vicinity of the "death garage" was concentrated tonight on a number of apparently fresh mounds of earth in the rear of the structure.

State police and county officers fought to keep huge crowds of curious persons from hampering the diggers.

Peddlers did a brisk business selling "souvenir" photographs of the confessed slayer and his victims.

At the Clarksburg postoffice, meanwhile, letters from women throughout the country who had answered matrimonial advertisements of the itinerant Clarksburg salesman continued to arrive by the score.

Letters May Show Clews.

These letters, bearing the postmarks of nearly every State in the Union, were added to the hundreds of others found in trunks, boxes and a dozen other hiding places in the slayer's home and in the garage where he slew his victims.

Detectives began poring over the missives, with the hope that from them new clews might be added to the evidence that is expected to send Powers to the gallows at West Virginia Penitentiary.

Amplifying his confession tonight, Powers said:

"I was permitting little Harry Eicher to watch the killing of his mother and the others, but in the middle of it he let out an awful scream. I was afraid the neighbors would hear it so I picked up a hammer and let him have it."

Steam Shovel Proposed.

The digging operations at Powers' "farm" were halted shortly after dark tonight when a heavy rain began to fall. The excavations will be resumed at dawn. Officials were considering the advisability of using a steam shovel.

Sheriff W. B. Grimm expressed a conviction that additional bodies would be found.

The search for bodies will be directed particularly at a well to the rear of the garage, he said. Sheriff's deputies reported that at the bottom of the well they found four feet of rock which probably was dumped there quite recently.

Creek to Be Explored.

Several deep holes in a creek which runs by the Powers property also will be explored.

Corp. Dorsey C. Dailey, of the West Virginia State police, and City Detective Carl Southern, to whom Powers made his oral confession late today, announced that they would receive a written confession from the prisoner tomorrow.

Powers said he could not write his confession tonight "because I will need some of the records you have in order to give you the dates and other things you will want to know," his captors quoted him.

The accused man reiterated that "no more bodies will be found out there."

"Five is all I killed," he asserted.

Italian Flier Dies in Mimic Battle.

Genoa, Italy, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—One officer was killed and three were seriously injured in the fall of a bombing plane during a mimic aerial attack here today.

To Attack Tariffs

Experts From 26 Nations Gather at Geneva for Sessions.

Geneva, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—A vigorous attack on protective tariff systems will be renewed under League of Nations auspices tomorrow when political chiefs and economic experts of 26 nations gather here as an economic coordinating committee of the commission for European union.

A direct indictment of tariff walls as one of the fundamental causes of the prevailing world depression will be placed before the Europeans in the report of economic experts, who have been studying Europe's need since the last session of the commission in May.

As long as the free movement of goods is obstructed by high customs duties, the report will declare, there is no chance for an improvement in Europe's and the world's grave economic situation.

Restrictions on the international movement of capital and labor also are attacked along with tariffs as contributing to the world's ills.

Persian Tomb Is Found Dating About 3,000 B.C.

Teheran, Persia, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Definite indications that a high degree of civilization existed in Persia 3,000 years before Christ were announced today by the University of Pennsylvania expedition under leadership of Eric Schmidt.

The explorers found a sarcophagus containing the skeleton of a man and a woman, burial ornaments and gifts, in excavations at Demghan.

WHOLESALE TRADE GAINS FOR AUTUMN

Orders for Goods Increase as August Ends With Dreary Record.

New York, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—August draws wanly to a close as a leading contender for the dubious honor of having been the dreariest month of the depression. Although early signs of autumn stimulus to general business activity have been somewhat tardy, a distinct pick-up in wholesale trade during the past week seems to indicate that merchants have at last decided that consumer inquiry is promising enough to warrant some replenishment of their stocks of merchandise.

It is widely felt that September must show some improvement over August, regardless of degree. Statistics for much of the latter part of August are not yet available; but a level of general business a little below July seems indicated, and it appears that most statistical inquiries will indicate a level somewhere around last December.

It is the between-seasons period for retail trade, and the late date of Labor Day this year has undoubtedly delayed the preparations for autumn. Regardless of the depths of depression that have been reached, however, the ending of the vacation season, the opening of schools, and the cooler weather, combine to send the consumer shopping. Merchants are already selling some volume of school merchandise.

Clothes and Shoes.

This is the twenty-second month since general business, as measured by most statistical indices, dropped below normal. Certain items of consumers' goods long ago turned upward. Depression or no depression, clothes fray and shoes scuff through to the uppers. Cotton textiles have been on the mend for about a year, woolen textiles and boot and shoe production for eight months. A few of the smaller woolen mills are now reported running on a 24-hour basis. Some of the silk mills were reported to have called back more workers during the past week.

Despite the gratifying progress made by certain isolated lines serving essential consumers' needs, however, the heavier industries, furnishing producers and capital goods, continue to wallow in the mire. The steel industry has been dragging along between 30 and 32 per cent of capacity for several weeks, and as Iron Age said this week, demand still fails to foreshadow a seasonal rise in production. The automobile industry drags along at sharply curtailed levels and is taking its time about the introduction of new models.

Loadings Are Disappointing.

The low level of the movement of revenue freight remains discouraging. The recently published report for the second week of August showed a gain of only about 8,000 cars over the previous week, or substantially less than the usual upturn for that period. Early estimates of the freight movement for the third week of the month indicate a further advance, but a gain still under the usual rise for mid-August. Railway earnings, as reported for July, are appreciably worse than those of June, and while the roads have reached a point where they must spend some money for rails and equipment, the basic steel industry looks for little support from these usually important customers.

The number of heavy construction projects is sufficient to maintain a fair demand for structural steel, but the aggregate of building activity has fallen off further. The F. W. Dodge report of contracts let in the first half of August indicates a daily average of $7,640,000, reduced from the average of about $11,000,000 for July. Public work and utility construction contracts showed sharp shrinkage from July.

Commodity prices continue to show a degree of stability, on the whole, which is an encouraging aspect of the present outlook. There has been no general or precipitous decline since the drop of the early months of the year was checked in June. For nearly three months the movement has been largely sidewise. The favorable implications of this apparent stability are but moderately cheering, however, in view of the fact that so many commodities are well below production costs. The past week has seen further marked strengthening of both crude and refined petroleum prices, reflecting the drastic measures in Texas.

New York Wife Leaps Six Floors to Death

New York, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Mrs. Lillian Keech, 26, of 425 East Eighty-sixth street, jumped from a window of her sixth-floor apartment early today and died in Flower Hospital an hour later.

With her husband, John S. Keech, an attorney, she had retired after attending a motion picture show. George N. Eumeuller, an elevator operator in the apartment directly across the street, told police that he saw Mrs. Keech open the window, climb out on the ledge and jump. Keech was unable to assign a reason for his wife's act.

Camp for Underprivileged Children Closes Tomorrow

Children at the Beach Camp of the Volunteers of America at Chesapeake Beach. The camp, which has been maintained all summer for under-priveleged children, will close tomorrow.

Volunteers Report Scores of Youngsters Given Beach Trips.

Beach Camp, the summer camp for underprivileged children of the District of Columbia maintained at Chesapeake Beach by the Volunteers of America, will close tomorrow, it was announced last night by Lieut. Col. Frank H. Wise, regional commander of the Volunteers.

Scores of youngsters have profited as a result of stays at the camp in the two months it was operated, Col. Wise said. In addition to the play facilities at the camp itself, he pointed out, officials at Chesapeake Beach have permitted the youngsters to use their facilities, including the swimming pool.

Children have received valuable mental as well as physical training, according to Col. Wise, although the camp was conceived and was operated principally to give the youngsters vacations away from hot streets.

Col. Wise said that the Volunteers are considering a plan for children's activity for next summer, which will enable them to care for more children. Under this plan the youngsters would be taken to a farm and given agricultural training in addition to play opportunities.

Farmer, 80, Holds His Own Funeral

Six Pastors Praise Him, Then Everybody Goes After the Food.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Friends from miles about flocked today to a farm near Valier to join in solemn funeral services for S. R. Patton, well-known 80-year-old Franklin County farmer.

Six ministers joined in the services. A quartet sang several songs and neighbors told what a real friend Patton had been.

Then the "dead" man, who wanted to hear his own funeral sermon, arose from his chair and led the crowd in feasting on good victuals spread on long tables in the yard.

"Uncle Steve" conceived the idea of an advanced funeral several weeks ago when he caught a cold. The illness was nothing serious, but, as he put it, he decided he wanted any flowers "thrown in my lap instead of on my grave."

200 Earthquakes Rock Baluchistan

30 Persons Are Reported Dead in 3-Day Series of Temblors.

Karachi, India, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Severe earthquakes which took a large toll of lives and did wide damage along the Afghan frontier were reported today in belated advices from Baluchistan.

At least 30 persons were killed and hundreds were injured in the towns of Moch, Abiegum and Pannir, which were destroyed, the messages said.

About 200 shocks were felt in three days, at least 63 of them occurring between 10 p. m. Thursday and 6 a. m. Friday. Entire hills disappeared in some districts and whole towns collapsed in ruins, the messages reported. Authorities feared that later advices would show the extent of the disaster to be greater than yet reported. Airplanes were sent to drop food and medicine to to refugees.

State Good Mexican Market.

Phoenix, Ariz., (U.P.).—Arizona is a better market for Mexican products than Mexico is for Arizona products by more than two to one, judging from figures of Arizona ports of entry for a recent 30-day period which gave imports a value of $888,678 as compared with exports valued at $415,192.

BOND MARKET SEES WIDE RAIL CHANGES

Declines to Lower Levels With Sharp Gains Close Week's Dealings.

New York, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—The question of most immediate interest in the bond market is the terms of the Treasury's financing expected to be announced tomorrow morning. Treasury certificates of indebtedness maturing on September 15 total $634,000,000 and maturities of certificates and notes on December 15 total $994,000,000.

Thus the Treasury will have to refund some $1,628,000,000 within the next three and a half months, all of which is short term debt. However, a substantial deficit, estimated at about $1,000,000,000, is in prospect for the current fiscal year as it would be difficult to meet such a deficit with increased taxes, because of the depression, an offering of some long term issues would not be surprising at this time.

The bond market last week provided some of the most interesting price movements in months, principally among railroad issues.

New low prices in recent years were reached in a large number of rail loans on Monday and Tuesday, but the trend was reversed on the succeeding day and continued upward until the close Saturday. A halting of the decline in rail issues, in view of its extent and duration, was not surprising, but no definite reason for the upturn, especially as it was so inclusive, developed.

Aside from the rails, outstanding changes were few. United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland 5½s of 1937 reached a new low for this year at 104⅝ on Monday but they strengthened gradually thereafter and closed firm. The $400,000,000 Franco-American private banking credit extended to the British treasury on Friday may be followed by a long term British bond issue when conditions favor. Argentine obligations broke sharply on Wednesday but recovered their losses the following day.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, Aug. 30.—Two large flotations—by Orleans Levee District of Louisiana and Cook County, Ill.—account for more than half of the $18,092,248 in new bond offerings scheduled for award by 95 companies this week, the Bond Buyer reports. The weekly average of new offerings for the year to date is $37,672,098. Financing by the Orleans Levee District, scheduled for Tuesday, consists of $4,200,000 4¾ or 5 per cent obligations, and the Cook County offerings on Friday consists of $2,150,000 Nurse's Dormitory bonds and $2,000,000 Poor Relief bonds.

There is every indication that the fall business in rayon will be at one of the highest levels in the history of the industry, the current issue of Textile Organon, published by the Tubize Chatillon Corporation, says. The review expresses the belief that the worst of the cotton price situation has been seen, and that outside of a possible weakness to the 6-cent level during the peak of the fall marketing season, the level of cotton prices is not expected to show further downward tendencies to the end of the year.

Sentiment in this country would be blighter as regards domestic business conditions if it had not been overshadowed by the recent developments in Europe, in the Bank of American National Association set forth in the current issue of the Review. Improvement in Great Britain and Germany, the bank believes, will go a long way to better the situation in the United States.

Construction contracts awarded in the 37 States east of the Rocky Mountains during the first three weeks of August amounted to $161,991,000, F. W. Dodge Corporation reports. This compares with $253,316,500, the prorated total for the first nineteen working days of August last year.

Construction of the 70-mile 220,000-volt transmission line which the Pennsylvania Water & Power Co. is building to bring additional hydroelectric power from the Susquehanna River to Baltimore is nearing completion. The line will connect the new hydroelectric development at Safe Harbor, Pa., with the system of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Co. of Baltimore.

600 CORPORATIONS TO GIVE DIVIDENDS

Payments Tomorrow Include Six Reaching More Than $3,000,000 Each.

New York, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Approximately 600 corporations will disburse dividents to stockholders Tuesday, the most important dividend date of September.

These payments include half a dozen aggregating more than $3,000,000 each, and play a part in the estimated turnover of a little more than $1,500,000,000 in investment funds next month, possibly more than $2,000,000,000 if the Treasury financing announced today includes a new bond issue.

The Treasury's operations contribute a large share of the September turn-over of investors' money. Maturing certificates of indebtedness to be refunded September 15 total $634,000,000 while on September 30, $100,000,000 of Treasury bills mature.

Other items on the investors' calendar include maturities of about $48,000,000 of corporate bonds and redemptions of $28,000,000 in advance of maturity; interest payments on Government and other bonds, income tax payments and offerings of new securities. The largest new offerings in prospect are $40,000,000 New York State bonds September 15, and $20,000,000 New Jersey bonds September 10.

Among the large dividend disbursements scheduled for Tuesday are Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, about $6,000,000; American Tobacco Co., $5,900,000; Drug, Inc., $3,500,000; Commonwealth & Southern, $3,400,000; Borden, $3,300,000; Baltimore & Ohio.

Among larger payments scheduled later in the month are General Motors Corporation, $32,600,000 September 12; Standard Oil of New Jersey, $25,500,000 September 15; Standard Oil of New York, $7,150,000 September 15, and U. S. Steel Corporation, $8,700,000 September 29.

Save your SPARK PLUGS with Amoco-Gas

INCREASE your mileage, too, by using Amoco-Gas. Amoco-Gas burns completely without hard carbon deposit and does not corrode or choke up.

Between the points of your sparkplugs is a gap of but a fraction of an inch. The space between the points is not a matter of guesswork but the result of careful experiments by sparkplug manufacturers.

Any reduction of this space will cause improper combustion--reduce efficiency, and increase oil and gasoline consumption.

Save your sparkplugs and improve your motor's performance by using Amoco-Gas always. Get better mileage--greater economy--lower repair bills--and lowest cost per mile.

LINDBERGHS GIVEN OFFICIAL WELCOME

Tokyo Throng Waves Flags as Famed Couple Rides in Flower-Decked Car.

Tokyo, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Waving flags took the place of Broadway's traditional ticker tape whirl for heroes, in this municipality's official reception today for Charles and Anne Lindbergh.

Through five long blocks the Flying Colonel and his wife rode in a flower-decked open automobile, with Mayor Hidejiro Nagata and American Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes, followed by a flag-waving crowd.

Specially made Japanese and American flags were supplied the populace by city authorities. The climax of the reception came at the open-air auditorium at Hibiya Park, where 6,000 men and women arose with shouts of "Banzai!" as the famous pair walked down an aisle to the stage.

Flowers Bedecked Car.

The Lindberghs first were guests at a tea given by the American Association at the Imperial Hotel. Afterward Mayor Nagata called for them in a car, the body of which was a mass of fresh greenery. Tokyo's coat of arms, on either side of the machine, was outlined with yellow asters and white chrysanthemums, while at the car's four corners were posts of ferns.

Headed by several companies of Boy Scouts and the scout brass band, the procession moved in a round-about way to the park, which is just across the street from the hotel. En route the procession passed to the east of the Imperial Palace, and then along the four-century-old moats and fortifications of the Tokugawa Shogunate days. The procession wound through Hibiya Park to the auditorium.

Mayor Nagata welcomed Col. Lindbergh and his wife, not only in the name of Tokyo, but also in the name of the 90,000,000 people of Japan. He mentioned the colonel's Atlantic flight and lauded their joint achievement in flying here from the United States. The mayor paid tribute to Anne for "her bravery, courage and gentleness in all that she has done in assisting her husband."

Colonel Expresses Thanks.

In response Col. Lindbergh thanked the government and city people for all that had been done in their behalf, and added that he and his wife were "looking forward to the time when you will be visiting us in America via airplanes, as we came to visit you in Japan."

At the conclusion of the reception Anne was presented with a huge bouquet as a personal gift of the mayor, and, amid many "banzais" and much flag waving, by the crowd, they left the auditorium, going to the home of Baron Hachiremon Mitsui, where they were dinner guests.

Ambassador Forbes and other members of the American Embassy were among the 46 guests. After the dinner of foreign style food, portraits of the Lindberghs and other guests were sketched by Tyushi Kawabada, one of Japan's best-known artists.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Uniformed bands, drum and bugle corps and troops of former soldiers, paraded downtown streets tonight as more than 5,000 members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars met for their thirty-second annual encampment.

Hotels were crowded and the streets were filled with bright-colored flags of the various divisions and groups.

Electricity Now Used To Catch Fishing Bait

Worms for fishing bait may be caught now through electricity, according to the American Game Association.

This newest labor-saving method follows: Sprinkle the lawn to make the worms think it is raining overhead. Sneak an extension cord from the kitchen, also two copper curtain rods from the back bedroom. Connect one wire to the extension cord to each of the rods, push these into the lawn three feet apart, plug in on a light socket.

Turn on the "juice."

It is not known what this makes the worms think, but it is claimed that all the worms within an area of six or eight feet soon come to the surface to see what it's all about.

Film Stunt Aviatrix Killed.

INDUSTRIAL CONTROL IS ANALYZED IN BOOK

Dr. Harry W. Laidler Shows Heavy Concentration of Nation's Wealth.

New York, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Dr. Harry W. Laidler, executive director of the League for Industrial Democracy, in a book to be published tomorrow (Thomas Y. Crowell), declares the United States has just passed through the most extensive period of concentration in its history.

As the result, Dr. Laidler states, 7,000 mining and manufacturing firms alone merged between 1919 and 1928, one corporate system controls three-fourths of the telephones, another the same proportion of telegraph business and still another dominates the field of radio.

A few great holding companies and investment trusts, the economist asserts, now dominate the electrical field and one corporation owns more than half the country's iron resources. Another, he says, controls more than 90 per cent of the world's nickel resources; four great concerns rule the major portion of the country's copper and eight, closely allied with the railroads, own about 80 per cent of the Nation's coal.

Other giant forces in industry he lists as:

United States Steel and Bethlehem, 52 per cent of the steel capacity.

Henry Ford, 40 per cent of the automobile production of 1930, and General Motors, 30 per cent.

In food packing, Dr. Laidler asserts two companies handle more than 50 per cent of meat in interstate commerce.

One corporation and its affiliates do a "large proportion" of the sugar refining.

MARINES JUMP TO SAFETY AS TWO AIRPLANES COLLIDE

pected to work on computations until late at night.

Elden Cessna, Wichita, Kans., was the first man pilot to cross the finish line, though his rating at Dayton was third, being led by S. D. C. Warrren, San Francisco, and Lee Brusse, Glendale, Calif.

Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, Long Beach, Calif., outspeeding both men and women, but listed sixth in the handicapping, expressed displeasure at her rating, and added, "If I ever enter a handicap derby again I'll fly an old wartime 'jenny.'"

Rated next to Mrs. Omlie in the women's class were Edith Foltz, Portland, Oreg.; Mrs. Martie Bowman, Glendale, Calif., and Mrs. Mae Haizlip, St. Louis.

After the first few planes darted over the line, the air became filled with contestants bunched together for the last dash from Akron, where they flew from Dayton through rough thunderstorms.

Maj. Ernst Udet, headliner of the European band of aerial acrobats, again climaxed the meet's offerings with a series of low altitude antics, the like of which veteran fliers said they had never seen before.

Looping, diving and nearly scraping the ground in a brand of "crazy" flying, he ended the display by cutting out his motor and using his plane as a glider for a series of loops and barrel rolls.

Lieut. A. J. Williams, former Navy flier, introduced novelty into his flying by taking instructions from the ground by radio.

John Livingston, Aurora, Ill., pilot, initiated his campaign to repeat a high number of victories in last year's races, by taking first place in a dead stick landing contest.

He landed one foot nine inches from a red flag, a margin of five inches over his nearest competitor, Lloyd Yost, Pinehurst, N. C. Third place was taken by Arthur Davis, East Lansing, Mich., who landed four feet, three and one-half inches from the marker.

Qualifiers in the one mile straightaway speed dash for men in planes of 175 cubic inch displacement were led by S. M. M. Lambert, Niles, Mich., who flew a Heath at an average speed of 134.30 miles an hour.

Second place went to Barton Stevenson, Kansas City, at 130.93 miles an hour in a monocoupe, with Arthur C. Chester, Joliet, third at 128.43 miles an hour in a Davis.

Three other pilots exceeded 125 miles an hour.

Three Navy Planes Halt For Day on Panama Trip

Key West, Fla., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Three Navy seaplanes remained here today instead of proceeding on their projected flight from Norfolk, Va., to Panama. The flight was expected to be resumed Monday.

No reason was given for postponing the flight from Key West to Trujillo, British Honduras, the next stop. The planes came here from Jacksonville yesterday.

Historic Autumn Fair Is Opened at Leipzig

Leipzig, Germany, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—The historic Autumn Fair opened in Leipzig today under the shadow of the world economic crisis.

Never was competition for business more keen, for with a winter of much unemployment ahead and many industrial firms in difficulties, the need for orders was urgent. A fortunate circumstance is that many dealers at the spring fair put off buying and their stocks were accordingly depleted. It was hoped here that seasonable requirements would counterbalance to some extent the economic depression.

"Dear Peggy

I'm almost too excited to write, and there's so much to see, both inside the plane and out. We've left Washington behind now, and I've just had a Chesterfield in the smoking compartment—they serve them on every ship.

"Among the eighteen passengers there's a senator and a foreign diplomat, and I'm surprised at the number of women. The trip is two hundred miles and the meter in the cabin reads two miles a minute, think of that.

"For me, the Chesterfields were the nicest touch of all. I was just dying for a smoke, and when the hostess passed them (and my favorite cigarette at that) everyone else seemed as tickled as I was. And my—they did taste good!"

Chesterfields are served in the smoking compartments of all these planes—the largest and most luxurious in the East. With the fast growth of air travel, Chesterfield makes many new friends each day, here as in city streets and country homes—wherever good taste counts.

A mild cigarette—delightfully mild and smooth—with a tobacco fragrance all its own.

Whether you're air-minded or not, you'll always find Chesterfield on the air-line to taste—the quickest way to get there. They Satisfy!

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S PROGRAM.

Gov. Roosevelt's proposal to raise $20,000,000 for relief of the unemployed puts New York in the vanguard of States that are preparing to shoulder their own responsibilities this winter. His plan is approved in principle by leaders of both parties in the Legislature. Some changes in the details may be made, but it seems certain that most of the provisions outlined in the governor's special message will be enacted into law.

Foremost among Gov. Roosevelt's recommendations is a request that the personal income tax be increased 50 per cent to raise the necessary funds. Some leaders think that the money ought to be raised by luxury taxes or special levies on articles in every-day use by a majority of the people. But there is general agreement that at least $20,000,000 will be needed. Most of this money would be expended in the creation of jobs. Some of it would go for construction of State public works, and the balance would be divided on the basis of need among counties and cities for work useful to the public. Cities and counties would also be authorized to issue bonds for public improvements.

Realizing that not all of the unemployed can be taken care of in this way, Gov. Roosevelt advises that funds be made available to local agencies for the purchase of clothing, food, shelter and fuel for the unemployed and their families. This public fund would be administered by a commission of three, serving without pay. None of it would be used in the form of a dole. Gov. Roosevelt is almost as emphatic in his opposition to a dole as is President Hoover. New Yorkers will be required to work for the aid they receive whenever it is practical for them to do so.

In sharp contrast to New York's policy of self-reliance is Pennsylvania's limping plea of indigence. These two great States are endowed with similar resources. A large share of the Nation's wealth is concentrated within the borders of each. Yet Gov. Roosevelt leads forward in a campaign for relief of the unemployed, while Gov. Pinchot misrepresents actual conditions in an effort to obtain a dole from Washington. Observing New York's spirit of confidence and determination Pennsylvanians blush crimson for the spinelessness of Gifford Pinchot. He has exposed the State that elected him to humiliation, betrayed the confidence of the people, and done everything in his power to demoralize their spirit of self-reliance.

Gov. Roosevelt's program is of national significance. New York, the most populous State in the Union, has declared its independence of Federal bureaucracy in handling this emergency. The most popular candidate for the presidential nomination at the forthcoming Democratic convention has fallen in line with the policy of President Hoover. If Franklin Roosevelt is nominated by the Democrats the dole can not be a political issue in 1932.

The wisdom of increasing the State income tax to provide a large unemployment relief fund is a question for the State Legislature to decide. Each State has to decide such matters for itself on the basis of its local conditions, the status of its debt, its need for public improvements and its peculiar demands for relief. The one thing certain is that it is a local problem and ought to be handled by local authorities.

On the whole, the New York program is encouraging. If each State has the backbone to meet its problems with a constructive, forward-looking program, there will be no actual suffering in the United States this winter, and the depression may be definitely routed.

DELUDING FOREIGN READERS.

For impudent and unwarranted assumption of knowledge of President Hoover's future attitude and action regarding war debts and reparations, the dispatch of the Washington staff correspondent of the London Times, under date of August 20, is unrivaled in recent newspaper history. In the face of Secretary Stimson's denials in London, reiterated by Acting Secretary Castle, this correspondent, by various implications, gives his London readers to understand that the President is planning to call an international conference for the purpose of canceling the war debts.

To attribute to President Hoover the Machiavellian policy of desiring cancellation and preparing to call a conference, yet fearing to allow his attitude to become known, is nothing less than a public affront to the Chief Executive. "Any report, in fact, which gave such a conference an air of actuality would be premature," says the Times correspondent. "In matters foreign and domestic," he adds, "Mr. Hoover's policies can be seen as yet only in profile—he will wait as long as he safely can before turning them full face to the country."

President Hoover's opposition to the cancellation of the war debts has been stated so repeatedly by himself and members of his official family that there is no excuse for misrepresenting him on this question. Particularly is it unpardonable on the part of a Washington correspondent who has every opportunity to know the facts, and who voices his innuendoes in the face of specific denials. Completely misleading his British readers, the correspondent insinuates that the President favors cancellation, but must hide his position for the time being from the American people; and that, as soon as he dares to do so, he will advocate and work for debt cancellation.

"The coming winter will show," says this writer, "with what measure of power and effectiveness the administration can carry through the policies which Mr. Hoover has conceived but can not yet announce."

The mendacious implication of this dispatch is too clear to be attributed to the traditional obtuseness of Britons in discussing American affairs. It is a deliberate misrepresentation of the attitude and purpose of the United States Government.

CLASSIFYING JOBS.

Maryland has made an appropriation for a complete survey and classification of the positions open to workers in that State. The questionnaire method is the basis upon which information is being obtained regarding the positions, duties involved, rates of compensation, lines of promotion, special tasks and any other facts pertinent to each type of work. A common personnel terminology will then be formulated with clear-cut definitions of duties which will be plain to both employers and applicants for work.

A classification already exists for the civil service positions of the State, but this survey will include all commercial and industrial organizations. It will be the aim of the commission conducting the inquiry to classify the available positions into groups as nearly standardized as possible. The information will then be kept current by regular reports from employers noting periodic changes in labor demand and salaries.

The survey will be of special interest to the State Department of Education as a guide to the types of vocational courses most needed in its schools. It will serve to bring information to workers as to future possibilities of jobs as well as defining accurately the qualifications needed for each job. Employment agencies and employers will find the report a most effective tool as it will initiate the technique of qualitative placement for the great mass of workmen. It is expected that the survey will do much toward clarifying the present haphazard methods of placing employes. States having this information correctly tabulated will find it of the greatest assistance in the present program of unemployment relief, and the national committee will be greatly aided by having such figures upon which to base its campaign.

GERMAN CONFIDENCE.

The return of confidence in the German government on the part of its people has been of the greatest value in the effort to stabilize finances. When the banks were closed last month opposing political factions attempted to show that the government was at best incompetent. Consequent unrest prompted the government to enforce the strictest measures against further expatriation of capital, and emergency decrees forbade the withdrawal of deposits except for pay rolls and similar purposes. The number of such regulations made the people complain that bureaucracy had run riot.

Every one was required to declare his foreign money, checks and other instruments of foreign credit. Many holders of a few pounds or dollar bills felt this supervision was needlessly severe. A further effort to keep German money at home was the imposition of a tax of $25 on travelers leaving the Fatherland. The result of this tax was immediate. Travel dropped to about one-half of 1 per cent of its usual volume. Though the result was keenly felt by resort owners in Switzerland, Austria, France, Scandinavia and other places, there is no doubt that millions of marks which would otherwise have been spent abroad were held in Germany.

Appeals were constantly made to the citizens that upon the reopening of the banks they should have faith in their nation and keep their money at home. The first day of banking resumption proved such a victory that the stringent regulations enforced by the government seemed quite exaggerated. Deposits exceeded withdrawals by several hundred per cent.

Then followed the Prussian election which had been awaited with apprehension both within the country and abroad. The vote of confidence in the existing regime was a triumph for democracy. The voters showed that they had no intention of turning against the government in its hour of crisis. Even the leaders of the conservative wing now assert that it was ever their desire to stand behind the present cabinet.

The return of confidence indicated by these two significant testimonials has not solved Germany's problems, but the attitude of the people has paved the way toward better times. Germany has been able to avert disaster which might have endangered the entire world. It is encouraging to know that the help which President Hoover offered Germany in the form of a moratorium turned the tide from despair to hope and confidence in the future.

MADE OF MILK.

Upward of 11,250,000 more pounds of casein were produced in the United States last year than in any previous twelve months. Casein, which is the basis of milk of all mammals, is used in the production of many varieties of foods. It is the media for the medical administration of quinine, iodides and other drugs, but by far the greater commercial value of the product is found in its use in sizing papers, in printing calicoes and in the manufacture of cold-water paints, cement for porcelain, and glues for bookbinding. In recent years casein has been largely used in airplane construction and more recently in the manufacture of miscellaneous articles, from billiard balls to combs and toothbrushes.

In 1924 the total production of casein in the United States was 20,683,000 pounds. In 1929 the production reached 30,537,000 pounds, and in 1930 this was increased to 41,819,000 pounds.

Fifty years ago the dairymen of America turned milk into butter and cheese. Thirty pounds of milk were required to produce a pound of butter, and ten pounds to make a pound of cheese. The casein of the milk from which only the butter fat was extracted and the whey from the cheese factories was fed to calves, hogs and chickens. The cheese factory has been superseded by the creamery in many of the Eastern States, which have yielded the cheese business to Wisconsin, Canada and New Zealand, and many of these creameries have installed evaporating machinery through which they save the casein and manufacture products which were entirely unknown to our grandmothers and their dairymaids.

The latest achievement of the grape cooperatives dashes to pieces that old adage about not being able to make bricks without straw.

OLD IRONSIDES AT ROME

By JOHN STUART BARROWS,
in the Boston Transcript.

All too tardily, a few days ago honors were shown to a good man, when the few poor remains of Capt. John Gwinn, U. S. N., were laid in the consecrated fields of Arlington Cemetery at Washington. For 80 years they had been almost hidden and forgotten in the Glenwood Cemetery, Philadelphia, when the grave was discovered, and haste was made to render honor where it belonged.

Capt. Gwinn was not a great man, but to him had come the signal honor of having been given the command of the frigate Constitution, on the Mediterranean station, at a time when Europe was struggling to regain safe footing for itself. Austria and Italy were in the throes of internal revolutions, and crowned heads were being deprived of their royal symbols. The presence of a United States ship in the vicinity was an indication of a desire to be of proper service; and it happened that Capt. John Gwinn was the man who wrote himself into history by being the host for a few hours of two notables who had fled from their historic thrones and were in need of refuge and patronage.

The Italian and Sicilian waters were favorite cruising grounds for the Constitution, in her many visits to the Mediterranean; and happening to be off Naples at this time, Capt. Gwinn invited the two dethroned representatives of State and Church, King Ferdinand II of Naples and Sicily, and Pope Pius IX, who had fled from Rome, to visit the frigate. They did so, and it is told that they were brought to the ship in a boat rowed by the captains of several ships of different nations in the harbor; and the log of the Constitution bears this entry, under the date of August 21, 1849:

> His Holiness Pope Pius IX and His Majesty Ferdinand II, King of the two Sicilies, visited the ship. Manned the yards and saluted with 21 guns on their arrival on board and also on departure from the ship, the vessels of war in the harbor saluting on both occasions.

The story is brief, but it records the first and only time that a pontiff of the Roman Church was ever on United States territory.

What was Capt. Gwinn's motive in this incident, history does not relate; that there might have been an evidence of sectarian loyalty is possible, for the Pope had opportunity to give the pontifical blessing to the Roman Catholics on board, and later medals and rosaries were sent to the officers and men, with an especial medal for Capt. Gwinn.

An immediate investigation of this reception was made by the commanding officer of the American squadron, who reported to the Navy Department that "Capt. Gwinn's action was extremely embarrassing and painful."

It was only a few days after this incident that Capt. Gwinn was taken sick, while the frigate was at Palermo, and he died in the Frinacia Hotel in that city September 1, and was buried in the Protestant cemetery near the hospital.

There his body rested until September 19, 1850, when it was reburied in the Philadelphia cemetery, and in 1864 his wife was laid beside him. Now both are in Arlington.

Capt. Gwinn began his naval career in 1809, when at the age of eighteen he was appointed a midshipman. He served in the War of 1812, and was on the U. S. S. Frolic sloop-of-war when she was captured, April 20, 1814, off the Cuban coast by the British 36-gun frigate Orpheus and the 12-gun schooner Shelburne, after a plucky race of 60 miles, during which the Frolic threw overboard all her guns.

Capt. Gwinn left behind him a record of service of 40 years, and the fact that he was assigned to command the Constitution at that time, indicates his standing as an officer and sailor.

Senator Couzens' Offer.

Detroit News.

Senator Couzens' offer of $1,000,000 to the City of Detroit for unemployment relief next winter, conditioned on the raising of $9,000,000 from other citizens, is a challenge to wealthy men and women, and to others not so wealthy who are yet enjoying comfort, to make up the sum demanded.

We do not desire to question Senator Couzens' judgment, nor to indicate in any way lack of appreciation of his generosity, if we call attention once more to the fact that while private charity will doubtless be necessary to relieve suffering for some months to come, it will not and can not solve the problem of unemployment, or be anything else than an unhealthy and, if long-continued, a ruinous substitute for work.

If You Don't Chain Your Vicious Dog, You Are Responsible for the Harm It Does.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ENEMIES of America, at home and abroad, find abundant evidence to prove our civilization corrupt.

Good and loyal citizens, shamed by the evidence, make answer that criminals are a minority.

The answer is true; but the more true it is, the more it condemns those who compose the majority.

If you see a man drowning and fail to throw him a rope that lies at your feet, are you not morally responsible for his death?

If public sentiment is the greatest force in the world, how can the majority escape responsibility for the evils it tolerates?

That the evils flourish in defiance of majority opinion is no indication that public sentiment has lost its power, but only an evidence that the power is unharnessed and unused.

Some time in the early part of this year a gambling house was established near a small city in the mountain district of North Carolina.

Month after month its patronage and equipment grew and nobody interfered or made protest. Apparently law violation gave no offense.

But in July a Sunday newspaper in a neighboring city spoiled the playhouse. It printed a story, including names and a photograph of the building, and within a week the gambling tools had been spirited away and the sheriff's men were serving warrants.

Public opinion, being correctly informed, required immediate and drastic action.

With few exceptions, public officials act promptly to satisfy the demands of those who vote. If they hesitate, it is because different groups make conflicting demands and the resulting clamor makes it difficult to determine which one represents majority opinion.

War veterans numbering only 700,000 were able to dominate Congress because they were organized to speak as a unit, and church groups, for the same reason, exert more influence than twice their number of the unredeemed.

Public opinion can suppress every evil in the land if those who favor decency will purge themselves of the prejudice and narrow partisanship that now divide their forces and make common cause against rottenness in whatever guise it appears.

Until they do, they must bear the burden of guilt for every evil their unused power permits to live.

"One of the Most Lawless."

It is disclosed that an act of Congress passed last winter revises the District of Columbia traffic regulations to give members of Congress exemption from virtually all the parking rules. It is not only provided that certain parking areas shall be for the exclusive use of congressmen but that the congressional sticker on a car permits the driver to park almost anywhere except in the door of a fire engine house or on top of a fire plug.

Washington gets its government from Congress and the congressmen have authority to vote themselves exemption from rules enforced against the subjects of the district. The subjects have no votes and the congressmen can not be held responsible to them. Government in the Capital under congressional legislation is producing one of the most lawless cities in the country, not an unexpectable consequence when a prerogative of authority is immunity from the rules it lays down for comobservance.

The members of Congress have long maintained the right under Volstead to drink where they pleased—in which privilege they are joined by most of the administrative officers of government—and it is not remarkable that they reserve the right to park where they please.

Pinchot's Pauper Policy.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Gov. Pinchot's program to "take the farmers out of the mud" by transferring thousands of miles of rural roads from the care of the townships to the State Highway Department may have given the impression that Pennsylvania is among the States that are liberally expanding road construction during the period of adversity. The governor's dramatic gesture should not divert attention from the fact that, as shown by a survey made by the Federal Bureau of Roads at President Hoover's request, Pennsylvania ranks among the backward States which have materially decreased their road-building programs for this year, thereby forfeiting a considerable contribution from the Federal Treasury next year based on the extent of construction.

Gov. Pinchot is eager for an unconditional handout from the Federal Treasury for the benefit of Pennsylvania's unemployed. But he is not so much interested when it is necessary for the State to do its part in order to receive benefits from the central government.

Married Women Don't Work for Fun, Says Feminine Employe, in Reply to Critics.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: And now "A Government Worker" has solved the unemployment problem by advocating that "some of the married women" be relieved of their jobs. Isn't that fine? Every time there's a national crisis some fanatic advocates just that and thinks it would solve the whole problem.

Look at the women in every kind of work nowadays. Note the three who will attempt solo flights across the ocean. Isn't that proof that women have at last come into their own? Why doesn't "A Government Worker" get himself a plane and try something that takes real grit? That would get his mind off such grievances.

The married women are, with very few exceptions, buying homes, helping those "back home" and working hard, doing their own scrubbing and cleaning and laundry after work and on Saturdays, even raising gardens, wearing second-style clothes and riding on the street cars while men drive second-hand but nevertheless expensive autos.

It seems to me the policy should be live and let live. I'm sure (with very few exceptions) none of the married women are working for the fun of it.

The Post Is Commended for Exposing Conditions That Led to Police Investigation.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is a source of satisfaction and pride to know that The Post is performing its duty, not only toward its readers, but to the public in general. The determined stand of the Department of Justice to make a thorough and full investigation of the third degree charges against the police is laudable both from the standpoint of a clean administration and an efficient police force. Events which recently developed show that The Post played a great part in bringing about the present inquiry into the treatment of prisoners.

Whatever may be the outcome of this inquiry, it remains certain that no officer, high or low, can with impunity maltreat a prisoner. A criminal, if found guilty, should be punished without fear or favor, but that is not the function of the police. One of the most effective means of stopping the maltreatment of prisoners is pitiless publicity; this is what The Post has been and is doing.

Intent of Winemakers Ought to Be Capable of Proof.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If you were walking through a lonesome section and saw a rough looking character pinioning a pedestrian against a wall and pressing a knife against his throat, would it be necessary to prove "intent" to hold that assailant for breach of the law?

If your wife brought home from market a basket of nice ripe grapes, it would be outrageous, would it not, to suggest that this fruit was to be used for any illegal purpose? But suppose you had a keg of mashed grapes or "concentrates," worthless for food purposes, delivered in your cellar and an arrangement made for a wine expert to make regular visits to the cellar to promote the progress of the mash into good, strong wine; can it be said that evidence of intent is lacking?

It would be interesting to have Col. Woodcock differentiate these cases.

Another Pedestrian Demands That Traffic Control Lights Be Retained.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wish cordially to indorse the views presented by "A Walking Washingtonian" in a recent issue of The Post. He described forcibly the arrogance of motorists.

The object sought by the propaganda against traffic lights is higher speed. Motorists graciously concede that the lights should be in operation during rush hours. What are rush hours? For Government employes I presume the period of congestion would be from 4:30 to 5 p. m. How about school children's hours? Young children with half-day sessions leave their schools at 12:30 p. m. Other children finish and are on the streets at 3 o'clock. Is there to be no consideration for these young people?

To remove any of the existing safeguards, as "A Walking Washingtonian" says, would be insanity.

PARK BODY UNABLE TO ACCEPT HIGHWAY

It Lacks Authority to Take Over Chain Bridge Road, Mackall Is Told.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The National Park and Planning Commission has informed the directors of the Washington, Great Falls and Dranesville Highway Co., which operates the toll road on the Virginia side of the Potomac River between Langley and Great Falls, that it is without authority to take title to the Chain Bridge highway in Virginia from the District of Columbia line to Great Falls, in the name of the Federal Government.

This had been suggested to the commission several months ago by Douglas Mackall, of McLean, Va., a director in the Highway company. The question was submitted jointly to the commission and the Virginia State Highway Commission.

The proposition submitted by Mackall, a charter member of the company, had not been officially approved by the other directors of the company. It provided for the purchase of the road and right of way by the State of Virginia from the stock and bond holders of the company at a valuation of approximately 50 cents on the dollar.

It was further provided that the State should borrow from the Federal Government the necessary funds to make the payments to the owners of the toll road. The State would then have eight years to repay the Federal Government without interest. At the end of that period the State would turn over to the Federal Government title to the road from Langley to Great Falls together with the title to the Chain Bridge highway from Langley to the District of Columbia line. This would represent a total contribution by the State of $300,000 to meet the terms of the Capper-Cramton act providing for the establishment of the George Washington Memorial Parkway extending from Great Falls to Mount Vernon on the Virginia side of the Potomac River.

The directors of the highway company are now making plans for a conference with Representative-elect Howard W. Smith, of Alexandria, who represents the district including Fairfax County in Congress to draft a bill for presentation to the incoming Congress which would specifically direct the National Park and Planning Cimmission to purchase this road in behalf of the Federal Government in preparation for the George Washington Bicentennial Celebration next year.

Two Women Among Seven Arrested in Liquor Raid

Montgomery Police Charge Occupants of Shack Near Glen Echo With Disorderly Conduct Under New Policy Calling for Customers' Arrest.

Seven persons, including two women, were arrested and a quantity of liquor was seized in a raid on a shack near the Conduit road, half a mile from Glen Echo, early yesterday by Montgomery County police.

Chief A. A. Moxley, of Montgomery County police, who led the raid, said that he believed the place to be headquarters for a number of other operations in the vicinity. A number of raids have been made recently in the section.

The alleged proprietor of the place, who was among those arrested, gave his name and address as Donovan Frazee, 26 years old, of 5833 Colorado avenue northwest. He was charged with illegal possession of whisky and intent to sell. Chief Moxley said that Frazee told him the place had been in operation for three months.

The others arrested gave their names and addresses as follows: Joseph Giammatteo, of Glen Echo; William E. Grant, of Glen Echo; Noel Wilcox, of Alexandria, Va.; Melvin Beck, of Bailey's Crossroad, Va., and Ruth and Gladys Owens, of Delmar, Del., who said they were visiting in Washington.

The four men and two women were charged with disorderly conduct. This marked the first time, according to Chief Moxley, that persons considered the customers of a raided place in Montgomery County have been placed under arrest. This policy will be followed in future, the chief of police said.

By following a beaten path leading from the shack the police found a cottage where they reported finding 182 bottles of beer, 2 gallons of gin, 3 gallons of alcohol, 2 gallons of red whiskey and apparatus for making beer. Beer and whiskey and pretzels were being served at the time of the raid, police said. A newspaper account of recent raids in the vicinity was pasted on the wall.

While in the shack about ten telephone calls were received, ordering "deliveries," Chief Moxley stated.

Frazee was released on $1,000 bond, pending his appearance in Rockville police court on September 14.

Others who took part in the raid were: Sergt. Leroy Rodgers, Policeman Theodore Volton, Capt. Oscar Gaither Ray and James Shoemaker.

Suspect Fails to Stop as Gun Is Fired; Possession Charged.

Charles Henry Weedon, of Rockville, was arrested yesterday on a charge of possessing liquor with intent to sell, after Montgomery County police followed him to an alleged hiding place, where they said he kept whisky.

Weedon, accompanied by a woman, the police said, fled when he was surprised in the act of emerging from a thicket with a package, it was reported. Sergt. Roy Bodmer, of the county police, fired two shots in the air, but Weedon continued his flight and was not arrested until some time later, after a search warrant to enter the man's home was obtained from Justice of the Peace William Burrows.

Six pints of whisky were found in the bushes where Weedon was first surprised, the police reported, while one pint and two gallons of peach brandy were found in his home, they said. Police said the man's wife destroyed some liquor as the house was entered. Bodmer was accompanied on the raid by County Policemen Paul Watkins and Ralph Howard.

Requirements for Voting At Party Primaries Stated

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In connection with the criticism directed at certain Republican nominees in Arlington County, Va., who voted in a Democratic primary involving only the office of State senator, I submit the following observations:

Over the period of the last 25 years I have several times asked political candidates, public officials, lawyers, &c., as to the requirements for voting in party primaries and invariably the response was the same: "All that is necessary to entitle you to vote in the primary is that you agree thereby to vote in the general election for the candidates chosen in the primary." The foregoing is the commonly accepted understanding among the voters of the county. If it is incorrect the political leaders have failed over a very considerable period to make the matter clear.

Although I have been a voter for more than 20 years, I have always understood the foregoing to be the rule. I think it was natural that when the Republican convention declined to name a candidate for the State Senate, every voter, Republican and Democrat, felt free to cast a vote to choose between the two Democratic candidates as long as such voter stood ready to vote for the winner in the general election. Consequently I feel that it is not just to criticize the action of certain Republican nominees in supporting a local man in connection with an office for which the Republicans have no candidate. A great many Republicans holding the foregoing views and animated by local pride, voted in the Democratic primary and it is my understanding that local Democrats vigorously urged them to do so.

ALEXANDRIA SHRINE GROUNDS BEAUTIFIED

Washington Masonic Temple Work Is Speeded Up; Dedication Set.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Roads and grounds surrounding George Washington Masonic National Temple, on Shooters Hill, are being improved and beautified, and the recent rains have brought out the grass on the terraced grounds, making the landscape particularly attractive.

Contractors are engaged in constructing the building for the heating plant, on Duke street, and the work in general is being speeded up in order to have everything in readiness for the annual meeting of the Memorial Temple Association, which will hold its sessions in the temple February 21 and 22, 1932.

The date for the dedication of the temple has been set for May 14, 1932. Approximately 50,000 Masons, from every section of the country and from foreign lands, are expected. The temple, with its grounds and endowment fund, will cost $5,000,000. One of the rooms will be a replica of the room in which George Washington presided over the lodge which bears his name, and which initiated the temple project to provide a safe resting place for the priceless relics of Washington, which are the property of Alexandria-Washington Lodge.

Exterior work on the temple has been completed and the contractors, it is understood, will place a large force of workmen on the interior. Two features of the temple are a set of chimes and a huge electric lantern or beacon, understood to be the largest of its kind ever constructed.

ARLINGTON CLINICS SUBJECT OF REPORT

County Health Officer Tells of Work Accomplished in Last Year.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The annual report of Dr. P. M. Chichester, county health officer, to be submitted to the County Board of Supervisors, shows a total of 940 children treated at the three county health centers. Of that number 254 attended the clinic conducted at the Washington District Health Center, 448 at the Arlington District Health Center, and 238 at the Jefferson District Health Center.

The report points out that the infant and preschool conferences are strictly conferences and not clinics, intended for the well child, and information and advice given out by the workers was such as to keep the children well.

The tuberculosis clinics are directing their efforts principally toward the childhood type of the disease. Up to the period included in this report the principal efforts of this clinic were directed toward the finding of adult cases. The report shows that there have been 67 cases found.

Preschool dental clinics have been established in the three health centers, and 341 preschool children have been examined. Of that number 146 were found to have no defects, while 195 received treatment and advice.

Before the Crash, everybody knew that A&P stores sold food at bargain prices. In most people's opinion that was A&P's claim to name and fame. But even in those careless days, A&P had many customers among the thrifty and intelligent well-to-do, as well as among those who had to save money.

These customers were first attracted by bargain prices, but they soon found A&P food the best they could buy at any price.

Today, with money scarce, thousands of new customers have discovered A&P. And they have been quick to realize that their tables are just as well set as ever, but at a great saving.

Money will become easy again, but in the meantime the American people have become food wise. The old myth that high quality and high prices go together has worn thin. For A&P food has become famous for quality.

CYCLAMEN.

If you followed the advice given in this column last March, your cyclamen is now in your cellar or some equally secluded place having its well deserved rest. This is the time to start it into growth again, so bring the plant to the light, clean the outside of the pot, remove the dead foliage and repot the bulb.

When resetting or planting an old bulb press it very lightly into the soil. In the case of an old bulb use the same size pot. After potting begin to water the plant regularly, being careful never to permit the water to lie on the leaves or about the crown of the plant. If you do, it will start the "rot," a disease without a cure. Always, to avoid this tragedy, pour water over the soil.

The cyclamen requires a specially prepared soil—one composed of good garden loam, sand and peat, with a dash of brick clay, the last in small quantity, suits it best. One piece of charcoal will prove beneficial if placed in the bottom of the pot. This prevents in a measure any acidity of the soil and also perfects the drainage.

The cyclamen has two phases of life. The first is a period of development and the second of rest. Each must be complete. After your plant ceases to produce more flowers, gradually cease to water it. About the first of May set the pot in which it has been growing in a dry, dark place and forget it.

A cyclamen is one of the very best flowering plants we have for house culture. It will do well with only a minimum of care. Being fond of moisture it must have a great deal of water. If the soil in which your cyclamen is growing is permitted to become dry for a half day, the growth of the plant will be materially checked, and it may take it six months to recover from the effects.

Next in importance to water is the matter of shade. Remember that while it demands light, it abhors strong sun. The cyclamen is not particular as to temperature. You can be sure of succeeding with it in any room in which a geranium will thrive. The ideal temperature for a cyclamen is 50 to degrees. If it gets much above 60 degrees the flowers will become what the florists call "soft," meaning that the stems are losing their stability and the flowers, instead of being erect are beginning to droop.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

POPULARITY won over the radio is proving a stepping stone to greater achievement in the career of Eugene Ormandy, the brilliant Hungarian orchestra leader. An outburst of enthusiasm marked the ending of his series of seven appearances as guest conductor of the Philadelphia Orchestra in the summer concerts in Fairmont Park, Philadelphia. The audience recalled him to the platform five times.

"The success Eugene Ormandy as achieved with the Philadelphia Orchestra is not a freak of fortune," a Quaker City critic writes. "Nor is it because of the fine cut of his clothes, his tricks in posturing or entirely his radio fame.

"The little blond director is not a showman. His deserved popularity can be credited to the intelligence and lucidity of his interpretations, his wise selection of programs, and his innate feeling for rhythm and tempo.

"And many friends and admirers whom Ormandy has won on his visit to this city, this season and last, have expressed a wish that this young conductor be invited for the winter season."

This is the second summer that Ormandy has served as guest conductor of the Stokowski organization and both seasons appear to have been little less than a personal triumph. He now resumes his work in radio as the orchestra conductor in the Jack Frost Melody Moments and other radio hours.

From the Middle West comes the story of what is described as the obscenity artist.

"At present there are none actually in Chicago," a writer in that city declares, "but there have been reports about an unknown transmitter that has been coming in on a regular wave length late at night. When a big station signs off for the day the unlicensed signal comes in with a man's voice yelling, 'Don't sign off. Listen to this!' And then blasts into a raw gag. He then leaves the air immediately."

THE combination of Ray Perkins and the Landt Trio is promised to listeners who turn their dial to WRC, (6:30 p. m.) tonight.

Six nights a week is the schedule for Bing Crosby, imported from California, beginning this evening, (WMAL, 10, p. m.).

One of the most successful dramatic series ever presented, "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" will be resumed over WRC, September 17. The same cast has been retained.

The "Adventure of the Speckled Band," which inaugurated the broadcasts last year, has been selected for the opening episode this season. Thereafter, the series will present the longer Holmes stories by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in serials of varying length.

Under the general topic, "Your Child," Angelo Patri, famous authority on children, will begin a series of discussions tonight, (WMAL, 7:30 p. m.).

TIME will be devoted to giving results of the National Amateur Golf championship by both networks each day this week.

Paul Robeson will be heard in a song recital broadcast from London tomorrow afternoon, (WMAL, 4:15 p. m.).

A six-month contract for continued appearances as star soloist with Nat Shilkret's Orchestra each Wednesday night (WRC, 7:30 o'clock) has been signed by Gladys Rice.

Eugene S. Leggett, chief of the Washington bureau of the Detroit Free Press and president of the National Press Club, will speak on "Back of the News in Washington" tomorrow night (WRC, 6:45 o'clock).

It is likely that William Hard will begin his broadcasts from Geneva, Switzerland, Wednesday of this week.

THE stamp of approval has been put upon the male quartet, directed by William Abernathy, WRC announces, by Hahn & Co., who will sponsor it, beginning September 18. The quartet may be heard tonight (WRC, 6:45 o'clock).

One of the newest of developments in recording clocks is the latest installation in the master power control room at Station WBBM, Chicago. Within its small, compact case is mechanism so very sensitive that when a sheet of paper is lightly inserted in an aperture set in the case, instantly and automatically it prints on the paper the year, the month, the date, designating a. m. or p. m., the minute and the second. Its action is automatic, changing the date and the day at the exact stroke of midnight.

Its purpose, Leslie Atlass, station director, explains, is to make a permanent recording on all program copy sheets and reports of station starts, breaks and stops.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Stunningly tailored coat and skirt of brown and white mixed tweed, with small collar of beaver and jersey. (Courtesy of Yteb, Paris.)

New York, Aug. 30.

WEL-L-L, it's easy enough to start things my deahs, but who can guess where they're going to end? Take the romantic adorable appearance of the little Second Empire hats, for instance! In themselves they're charming, but just look at the ideas they gave the Haut Couture!

All during the August collections of the leading Parisian couturiers we read about "back drapes and ruffles admit period theme in Worth gowns;" "trains drape in various ways in Empire evening gowns of Schiaparelli," and so forth, almost without end, and for every one of the leading Paris houses! 'N' all because of the new hat trend!

Our Reaction.

In a way we (meaning I, really, and referring to my capacity as Fashun Cricket) are just a bit doubtful about this wholesale turning to romanticism in clothes, because of the fear that it won't be handled with taste and discrimination. The way some women dove at the new Eugenie hats, sticking them on at any old angle but the right one, wearing them with any kind of a dress that was handy, and calling distressed attention to ugly, untidy coiffures, makes it not too critical of this particular Fashun Cricket to wonder if they'll adapt the gowns in the same haphazard way.

After all, my deahs, the reason for your errors in the millinery field was only your overenthusiasm. The gowns of the Second Empire influence will be as varied and as becoming to you in some particular adaptation as the hats—remember, I'm not objecting to your embracing the new trend, but only urging caution and discretion.

• • • •

Sometimes we carry on our sports 'way into the cold season, seeing no reason in mere weather to stop having fun! And for such hardy souls the couturiers have sympathetic understanding—as you can see from the coat and skirt from Yteb that I have sketched for you today These are of brown and white mixed tweed, and smart as well as comfortable in their slender lines. The coat, with its odd incrustations in the back, has large patch pockets and a small, upstanding beaver collar, and the skirt has a pleated inset.

And should the weather warm up suddenly, it doesn't matter, for the jacket-blouse worn with this ensemble would then have a chance to reveal its chic self. It's very tailored, of brown striped jersey, and bordered and cuffed with the tweed.

• • • •

Isn't this just perfect for you who take your sports when you can get 'em, and often travel far to reach them? It's delightful in the travel-costume role, as well as the sports one!

• • • •

Slip into a slip and observe the result! Does it bunch here and hang unevenly there? Does it show above frocks when it shouldn't? Well, if it does, it isn't a slip at all—but an old-time atrocity! And since you're very likely interested in a slip that is a slip and that has all the good points you've ever heard of, and more besides, concealed beneath its lovely folds, we'll tell you that to get complete details all you have to do is send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet. 'N' if you ever saw anything more perfect for all underfrock problems, then we just plain give up!

• • • •

Watch for Dare's weekly letter in The Sunday Post.

Au revoir!

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"VIRGO"

IF August 31st is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8 a.m. to 9:50 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 a.m. to 7:45 a.m. and from 5 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Chance circumstances on August 31st will combine with your efforts to bring you ultimate benefit. Subjects who come under today's influences, should not allow themselves to be unduly influenced by elderly people, and should act on their own decision and initiative.

Children born on this August 31st will have reflective dispositions, and will display independence of thought. They will be given to pensive moods, and will be drawn to the serious side of life, more than the merry. Their loyalty will be dependable, and they will make staunch friends.

Born on August 31st, you are a person with no mean ability, which is only given half a chance because of your chronic pessimism. Your energy is paralyzed by hopelessness—"hope without effort is fallacious; efforts without hope are feeble." You torture yourself with imaginary doubts. Your visionary worries are downing you; not your real disappointments and defeats. You are always equal to your disasters when they come. You never lose your head at times when you need it most as you are neither a physical nor moral coward. You are never borne down and cowed by visible foes—why submit to your fanciful ones?

You belong to those who form the conservative element of the world. You are not anxious to blaze new trails, you are shackled with the chains of tradition about you. You are a creature of custom and habit, and a great respecter of conventions. You are not an adopter or an adapter of new ideas.

You are naturally courteous, naturally kind, and considerate of other people's feelings. You are yourself sensitive to slights, many of which are the products of your own imagination. If you be a woman, you set love in every niche of your life, and kneel down and worship your own faithfulness of it. This attitude of mind overshadows the joyous give-and-take love, which is above jealousy and suspicion.

CULBERTSON ON CONTRACT

By ELY CULBERTSON

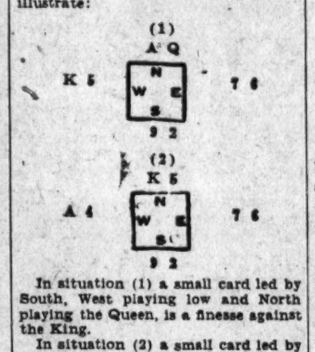
World's Champion Player and Greatest Card Analyst

76

FINESSING.

This article will answer numerous inquiries that have been received concerning various finessing situations.

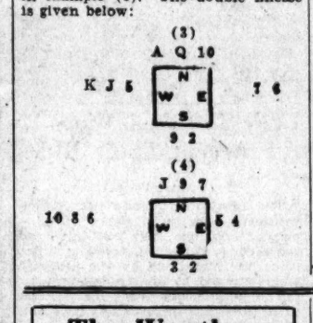
A finesse is an attempt to take a trick with a lower card, when a higher, not in sequence with it, is held, in the hope that the card of lower value will win the trick. To illustrate:



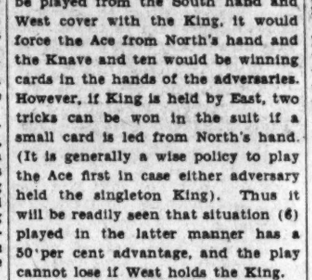
In situation (1) a small card led by South, West playing low and North playing the Queen, is a finesse against the King.

In situation (2) a small card led by South, West playing low, and North playing the King, is the finesse of the King against the Ace.

There are infinite numbers of combinations where finesses are possible, but years of experience have proven that any attempt beyond what is termed the double finesse (excepting in instances where a suit has been bid to the right of an unusual holding in this particular suit) is not a winning play. The single finesse is given in example (1). The double finesse is given below:



In addition to single and double finesses, there is one called the combination finesse.



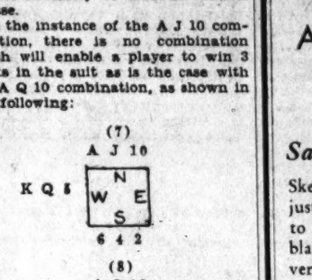
In situation (5) the Queen should be led from the South hand, and should West play low, North should also play low. The Knave should be played next and again North plays low unless West plays the King.

In situation (6) should the Queen be played from the South hand and West cover with the King, it would force the Ace from North's hand and the Knave and ten would be winning cards in the hands of the adversaries. However, if King is held by East, two tricks can be won in the suit if a small card is led from North's hand. (It is generally a wise policy to play the Ace first in case either adversary held the singleton King). Thus it will be readily seen that situation (6) played in the latter manner has a 50 per cent advantage, and the play cannot lose if West holds the King.

The following descriptions indicate when a finesse should be taken and when it should not be taken.

Holding A K J, with or without other cards of the suit in the hand, and a total of eight (or less) cards of the suit in the combined hands, the finesse of the Knave should be taken, after playing the Ace or King to insure against the singleton Queen winning. Holding nine or more cards in the suit, one hand containing the A K J, the percentage is against taking the finesse, unless information has been gained from the bidding which would make it a winning play.

For instance:



If, during the contract West had bid two suits, South could be practically certain that West held one card in one suit and two cards in another suit. In view of the length of the spades in Declarer's hand and Dummy's hand, West is very apt to hold only one card in this suit. Therefore, Declarer should lead the spade Ace and then enter Dummy and finesse the Knave in South's the Knave or Queen should be finessed against the King when there are ten or less cards in the suit.

Holding A Q 10 in one hand and three or more small cards of the suit in the other hand, take the double finesse (playing the ten first and the Queen on a subsequent lead). Holding only two small cards, it may not be necessary to take the double finesse.

In the instance of the A J 10 combination, there is no combination which will enable a player to win 3 tricks in the suit as is the case with the A Q 10 combination, as shown in the following:

In (7) West will play the King, which will insure the taking of 1 trick. In (8) the first finesse will lose to the Queen. If the K Q x are held by East, 2 tricks will be lost.

When one hand holds K J 5 and the partner holds A 4 2, the Ace should be played first and then the Knave finessed on the second lead. Holding A J 5 in one hand and K 4 2 in the other, the King should be led first, and the Knave finessed on the second lead.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Preemptive (Shut-out) Raises Are Banished.

The Preemptive (shutout) Raises or Takeout bids have no logical place in Contract. Raises (or Jump Takeouts) are strictly strength-showing bids and to attempt a shutout Raise, which is a deliberate overbid, would hopelessly confuse partner.

To illustrate:

The Opening Hand
1 Spade
The Responding Hand
4 Spades

The triple Raise, far from being a shutout overbid, shows a rather powerful hand worth about 6 supporting tricks, and if the Opening Hand holds somewhat better than the minimum, even a Slam is not far away.

SOVIET ALTERATIONS TO MEET NEW IDEAS

Stalin Reputedly Initiates Step to Change Secret Political Police.

Moscow, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—The Soviet's secret political police, or O. G. P. U., which has struck terror in the hearts of Russia's foes and traitors at home and abroad, is feeling the iron hand of a power greater than its own.

A quiet but possibly far-reaching "house cleaning" of the O. G. P. U. has been started, persistent but unofficial reports said. It was even said that Josef V. Stalin initiated the move. He was represented as calling the leaders of the O. G. P. U., which shrouds its activities in mystery, into his office and reprimanding them for failure to change their methods to meet new conditions.

"Everything is being run on new lines," Stalin was reported to have said. "Everything except the O. G. P. U. It is time for change there, too."

Despite the difficulty of confirming the reports, there have been many indications of a house cleaning in recent weeks. Viacheslav Menjinsky, although head of the O. G. P. U., is very ill. His assistant, Henry G. Yagoda, upon whom the actual work falls, was removed to make way for Ivan A. Akulov, an intellectual from civilian governmental circles. Yagoda was virtual head of the secret police in the years of mass arrests, melodramatic sabotage trials and mass exiles. The new leader is of another type.

S. A. Messing, another prominent leader, was removed and placed at the foreign trade commissariat.

One other indication of changes was given by A. A. Soltz, chairman of the commission on judicial appeals, who attacked the methods of the judiciary authorities for convicting and punishing thousands of innocent persons. Indirectly his attack was a tirade against the "private" O. G. P. U. trials of political suspects.

Relief Has Right of Way In New York Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt's unemployment relief program has the right of way for the second week of the special session of the New York State Legislature as the senators and assemblymen returned to Albany tonight.

Senator George R. Fearon, Republican majority leader, announced at Syracuse that the State's relief measures would be pushed through as speedily as possible.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

SLEEP, sleep and still more sleep ...Three or four times around the clock, as likely as not, every day...Until the men came to refinish those upstair floors... Using a contraption that sounded like a Rocky Mountain freight engine on a 40 per cent grade for the purpose...Followed by the plumbers to make those new installations... Bringing their own Chinese gongs and crash cymbals to pound on, because the pipes we had weren't noisy enough ...Rain...Stuffy Pullmans, filtering soft coal soot through fine-meshed screens so it will get in your hair better...Planes are quicker...But make some people sicker...Dirty beaches... Sea nettle, sand flies, land crabs and every language on earth, except the English...Tidal waves...Death and disaster stalking innocent vacationers in search of fun...Glad I stayed away from it all...And had a swell time at America's finest fresh water pool instead...Where the sea sand is made on a base of Le Page's glue, it's that hard to hose off...And the sun blister's your shoulders...Except when it rains...And it always rains...All this, of course, only provided you like fresh water pools...A motion picture theater...Wonder what its like inside... Splendid shows in town this week—so I hear...Ah, a passing shower...A perfidious weather man, quite... Smothers you with heat and humidity one day...Chills you plenty with cold showers the next...Imagine sitting in front of a couple of blazing logs in the fire place in Washington on August 22...And liking it...Or don't imagine it and see if I care... This is the first time I ever noticed that a column is 9 miles long...Well, well, if it isn't sprinkling...Another motion picture theater...I must go in one some time...A streak of sun through drifting clouds...Giraffes, wildebeeste, elephants and a few zebras from the tennis courts coming down to the Lincoln Memorial water hole to drink at dusk...Just before it starts raining...The honk of a flock of wild Packards, flying south for a tough winter...The boys down around are hangar tell me this DO-X aerial liner that has been something like ten months on its way to America is the last word in flying things...Sort of a Dornier cri, as you might say... Or might not...A nice walk, that one that starts as you go into Rock Creek Park out by Walter Reed and ends as you come out, weeks later, about 50 feet this side of Richmond...But, at that, there is still a good deal of waste line about the waistline...Raining again...And don't say I didn't warn you...River the color of the coffee in you know what joint...Probably tastes like it, too...Water high in the banks...All these rains seem to have flushed out some new camps down under those trees...That's an idea, camping...Not out here, though ...Down around the Tidal Basin, where it's wilder, would be better... First time I've seen a kid riding bareback since I can remember...That's a thought, too...Hire a horse...If one could only be sure they have a McClellan saddle instead of these dinky little pigskin liver pads that keep you posting all the time...Even so, a taxi might be just as well, what at you age and everything...If that little bit of swimming stiffened you up like that, you had better fight your way past that polo field for a while yet... That reminds me of Joe Cook's golfing companion who said he was a little stiff from bowling...Never mind where you're from, go on, shoot...Certainly you've heard it before...But probably not for the last fifteen or twenty years...So I went out and fixed that back gate that's been hanging by one hinge for so long...In a gentle drizzle...And it stayed put in great shape until the sun dried it out next day...The carpenter said that what with the hard times and all I should have sent for him in the first place...How did I know he was in the first place...Twenty degrees cooler than the street, eh...I'll have to look into that one of these days...And the legitimate theater...I wonder if the boys ever managed to Save Our Stage ...The magazine that fellow is trying to read on the q. t. down inside his coat is probably Ballyhoo...Tst, tst, tst...But funny...With so many rains to keep it fresh, the countryside has never looked cleaner or greener or more attractive than right now...And sunburn stings us heliophobes just as much as ever...How do you mean, did I enjoy my vacation?

What vacation?

Utah Soft-Coal Mines Accept Trade Rules

(United Press.)

The Federal Trade Commission yesterday announced that the bituminous coal operators of Utah have accepted a series of trade practice rules, as formulated by the industry and approved by the commission.

The regulations deal in general with violations of antitrust laws and define unethical methods of conducting business.

Trade practices coming under the ban of the regulations include false advertising, defamation of competitors, secret payment of employes of common carriers to induce business, price discrimination and obtaining information concerning a competitor's business by bribery of their employes.

Rum Rains on Faithful From Attic of Church

Whitesburg, Ky., Aug. 30 (U.P.). The congregation in the Carr's Fork Church had just finished singing "Amazing Grace" and "How Sweet the Sound" today when they heard what they believed was rain falling into the aisles.

Then the odor of whisky was detected. The Rev. Taylor Mullins asked members of the congregation to boost him up into the attic. There he found a leaky, 5-gallon keg of whisky.

Services were resumed.

Young Divorcee Killed, 3 Wounded in Gun Duel

San Francisco, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Mrs. Palmina Ternullo, 20-year-old divorcee, was killed, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nuncista Patania, were probably fatally wounded, and Harry Ternullo, former husband of Mrs. Ternullo, was less seriously hurt in a pistol duel here today.

The Patania family, including Mrs. Ternullo, were accosted by Ternullo on a street corner. The latter drew a pistol and began firing. Patania produced another weapon and returned the shots.

CROWDER HURLS NATS TO 5-1 VICTORY OVER MACKS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

ONE hundred and forty-two wielders of assorted woods and irons face the greatest free-for-all struggle in competitive sports today when the field tees off in the national amateur golf tournament at Beverley Club, Chicago, the winner to be decided only after a solid week of both medal and match play.

For seven years, ever since Bobby Jones rose to the heights, the national amateur could be simply described. It was "Jones against the field" every year. Sometimes the Atlantan lost, more often he won, but the pre-tournament outlook was simply the prospect of who would win the title if Jones didn't.

The great Bobby is on the sidelines this year, in voluntary retirement after eliminating himself from amateur ranks by capitalizing his fame with a $250,000 movie contract. His absence leaves the event wide open. Any one of twenty in the field can be ranked among the favorites and the "dark horse" element is not so dark this season.

Most Exacting Test

This column is of the belief that the title will fall to the player who is "hot" for a solid week. Not necessarily the best golfer, but the man who happens to be on top of his game from today until next Saturday, when the event will be brought to a close.

The national amateur with its schedule of two qualifying rounds and two 18-hole rounds before the 36-hole match play starts is the most exacting test in golf, the national open with its wholly medal play notwithstanding. Many a favorite has come to grief in those two short 18-hole tests, when an obscure opponent may put on a "hot hand" and eliminate some highly regarded contender. Jones, himself, twice was a victim of these 18-hole rounds, his lapses costing him the chance to advance to the 36-hole matches, which are a fairer test of golf and hold out the probability that the best man will win.

Match play temperament will be the greatest asset in the tournament. The ability to stare defeat in the face and capitalize on the mistakes of the opponent is not an adjunct of every high-ranking golfer. Excellent medal players are known to crumple before the sheer grit of an inferior foe. So it will be in the tourney at Beverly with its four days of match play.

Voigt Gains Favor

Those temperamentally fitted for the gruelling match play are many and the winner might well be among them. George Voigt, former Washingtonian, now hailing from New York, is recognized as one of the greatest of match players, once having compiled a record of 56 consecutive match-play victories during a string of tournament successes.

Dr. O. F. Willing, golfing dentist from the Coast and Jimmy Johnston, of St. Paul both veterans, are others who have made their mark in match play. They were the principals in the finals of the 1929 tournament in which Johnston won after a hectic 36-hole round which taxed the staying qualities of both to the utmost.

Maurice McCarthy, former Georgetown University golf captain and basket ball star and Roland Mackenzie, another Washingtonian who is playing from Hollywood, are another pair noted for their match play qualities. It was Mackenzie who carried Von Elm to nine extra holes in a tournament several years ago and it was McCarthy who smashed this record for long distance play by carrying Von Elm to ten extra greens before yielding last year.

Kocsis Is Threat

The entry of Charley Kocsis, 19-year-old Detroit lad, is another which can not be discounted. This youth, who last year eliminated Francis Ouimet, former champion and semifinalist in 1929, boomed his stock a month ago by tying Tommy Armour in the Michigan Open and then beating the former National, Open and British Open champion in a play-off that went an extra hole.

No longer is it "Jones against the field." The only bogeyman in the tournament are the two 18-hole tests that harbor the pitfalls for favorites and hold out fame to any obscure contender who can put on a "hot hand."

Malone Cracks in 8th And Reds Down Cubs

Chicago, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Pat Malone, after hurling well for seven innings, cracked in the eighth this afternoon and the Cincinnati Reds got enough runs to earn a 4-to-3 victory over the Cubs. The Reds were outhit, but some sloppy play by the Bruins in this one inning, together with four hits, gave them a win.

Cuccinello opened with a single and took third when Grimm threw Beck's sacrifice into center field. Heathcote batted for Durocher and doubled, scoring both runners and putting the Reds in front. Hits by Sukeforth and Crabtree meant two more.

Takoma Tigers Retain Crown as 6,000 Watch Post's League Battles

Saks Nine Bows, 2-1, In Feature Game on Ellipse.

Capital City League Winners to Receive Gold Baseballs.

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

THE Takoma Tigers retained the unlimited championship of The Post's Capital City League by defeating the Saks Clothiers by a score of 2-1 on the South Ellipse diamond yesterday, as more than 6,000 fans, attracted by the four championship games staged by the league, looked on.

In the other games, the Schwartz Jewelers captured the junior title, winning from Stewart's Pharmacy by a 3-2 margin. Spengler won the opening game of the midget titular series with the Wonder Bread nine, 2-1, and Olmsted Grill drew first blood in the senior series, defeating the Miller-Roamers, 7-1. It was a perfect day for baseball, Indian summer prevailing.

The Post will reward the members of each championship team with gold baseballs.

Takoma broke the ice in the first inning of its game with Saks, when Hessler drew a free pass, was sacrificed to second by Henley and scored on James' hit to center field. Payne held his opponents at bay from this point until the eighth, when his support temporarily failed him.

Marosey Fails to Weaken.

Eddie Marosey started out like a house afire, but instead of weakening, as most of the spectators thought he would, the flashy southpaw was going stronger than ever at the finish. The Clothiers knotted the count in their half of the third, when Marosey walked Colliflower and Payne in succession, after Mannix had flied out to Fitzgerald. Sebastian was struck with a pitched ball, filling the bases.

With the opportunity of garnering the lion's share of the individual honors, Luckett was ingloriously retired on strikes, leaving the men on base looking like a new kid in a strange neighborhood. Sammy Hook, however, arose to the occasion by permitting Marosey to use him for a backstop, forcing Colliflower over the plate. Barry was easy for the Tigers and the rally was ended.

With Payne and Marosey mowing the opposition down in regular order, the game seemed destined to go into extra innings.

Sebastian Makes Good Catch, Poor Throw.

In the eighth inning with two down, however, "Shorty" Sebastian, after making a splendid catch of a hit between third and shortstop, threw wild to first, Mannix knocked the ball down but was unable to catch the runner at the base. A moment later Henly knocked an easy roller to Birch at second and this time Mannix missed the ball, which rolled into the crowd allowing Hessler to score. Saks made a futile gesture in the ninth when Sebastian walked, but was stranded when Marosey bore down and retired the side on infield outs.

NO-HIT GAME SPOILED BY HOGAN

Gets Only Safety Off Collins as Phils, Giants Split.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Phil Collins' one-hit pitching gave the Phillies an even break with the Giants today. The Giants won the first game, 8 to 2, and the Phils the nightcap, 3 to 0. Shanty Hogan's single in the second inning robbed Collins of a no-hit game in the second contest.

All the Philly runs scored off Walker were unearned. Jackson's error with two out in the third allowed them to score a pair of runs, while Terry's error let in the third run in the seventh.

In the opener Carl Hubbell had an easy time subduing the Phillies, as the Giants whaled a trio of Shotten's hurlers for 16 hits. Travis Jackson led the Giant attack with four hits.

The two National League leading hit, Klein going hitless in four times up, striking out three times, while Davis made one hit in three trips to the plate.

U.S. Amateur Golf Opens Today

11 Scratches Reduce Field; 142 Now Seek Honors.

Mackenzie Has 73 in Practice; No Favorite for Title.

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor).

CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 30 (A.P.).—The withdrawal of eleven entries, including prominent British as well as American contenders, today reduced to 142 the field for the national amateur gold championship, starting tomorrow over the more or less baffling contours of the Beverly Country Club.

The unusually large number of scratches was posted by the United States Golf Association late today after a feverish outburst of practice, featured by a sensational round of 38-33—71 by Frank Dolp, of Portland, Oreg., the first contender to equal Beverly's elusive par.

Dolp set the pace as more than half of the field took advantage of a day of beautiful weather to indulge in one more workout before tackling the first round of the two-day 36-hole qualifying test, scheduled Monday and Tuesday.

Mackenzie Has 73 Card.

The next best scores included a 73 for Roland Mackenzie, now playing from Hollywood, Calif., and a 74 for the veteran Dr. Oscar F. Willing, of Portland, Oreg., who helped to serve further notice of the Far West's bid for the last of the titles relinquished by Bobby Jones.

The formal withdrawal of Jesse Guilford, of Boston, 1921 champion, was posted along with that of Dexter Cummings, of Chicago, a former national intercollegiate champion while wearing the blue of Yale. J. Wood Platt, the Philadelphia veteran, also has declined the issue, as have Lewis L. Bredin, of Detroit; Lee Chase, of Buffalo, former New York State champion; Emory Stratton and Clare Hodder, of Boston; F. D. Ross, of Hartford, Conn., and James S. Bush, of Dayton, Ohio.

The British threat diminished forthwith as result of the withdrawal of the De Forest brothers, John

Whitney Horse Poisoning, A La Sinclair Case, Would Embarrass Spa Stewarts

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Harry F. Sinclair's experience with the Saratoga racing stewards, who barred his horses from the meet because some one poisoned his filly Ladane, is reminiscent of an experience of Mr. John Pratt, an American journalist, whose apartment in London was damaged by fire. After the London fire brigade had clattered up in brass helmets and extinguished the fire the commander called Mr. Pratt aside and handed him a slip of paper.

Mr. Pratt did not read the slip of paper at once, but he toyed with the thought that it might be an official citation for his great courage in dashing the goldfish bowl into the flames while his wife, on the telephone, was waiting for the operator to finish her tea and ring the fire brigade.

The next morning, however, Mr. Pratt thought he might frame the little certificate and hang it on the wall, but, on reading it, he discovered that he was summoned to court on a charge of having had a fire. In due course Mr. Pratt paid a fine of £10, which was about twice the amount of the damage, as it developed that it is a very serious offense to have a fire in London, on account of the inconvenience to the fire brigade.

"I hope," Mr. Pratt remarked to his counsel, at the conclusion of his trial, "that I am never held up and robbed in London, and if I am, you may be sure I shall try to keep the matter secret from the police, so as to cause them no inconvenience. I am only a poor journalist."

In Mr. Sinclair's case, the Saratoga stewards appear to have resented the inconvenience to them, occasioned by the poisoning of Mr. Sinclair's horse. There is no charge that Mr. Sinclair or his trainer, Frank Taylor, poisoned the horse, the evidence being that, on the contrary, they wished to win, for they had advised some of their friends to bet on Ladana. Moreover, they are said to have bet on her themselves.

Authorities Also Should Be Blamed.

It appears to have been during the time that Mr. Taylor went to lunch the day of the race that someone stabbed Ladana in the mouth with a needle. Her mouth swelled, she was unfit to race and there was no attempt to conceal her condition from the stewards when it became apparent.

The stewards held that it was up to the owners to protect their stock from poisoners, but any one who has been punished because some criminal has fouled his horse in the barn is likely

SEEKS CROWN

GEORGE VOIGT,
former Washington golf star, now representing New York, who is considered a strong contender for the national amateur golf title.

BALTIMORE'S NET STARS BEATEN

Washingtonians Win, 5-3, as Mitchell Loses Match.

ALMOST duplicating last year's result, Washington public parks tennis players yesterday defeated a team of Baltimoreans on the Potomac Park courts by a score of 5 matches to 3 as Dooly Mitchell, local public parks champion, suffered his second loss in as many days after having won the first set.

Though Mitchell bowed to Elmer Rudy, 3—6, 6—0, 8—6, Washington gained the edge in the five singles matches, 3 to 2, and then clinched the day's laurels by capturing two of the three doubles encounters.

Shore, contiquing his gilt-edged tennis of Saturday, triumphed in the No. 2 singles match over Morton Shapiro, 6—3, 7—5, and with the aid of Anthony Latona, former Western High School luminary, disposed of Shapiro and Morton Baker in the doubles by scores of 7—5, 3—6, 6—4.

Hunt Scores Impressive Victory.

Gilbert Hunt, rising young Capital boy star, who has been carrying his home-town banner proudly in foreign tournaments during the past month, returned to town in time to add to Washington's victory by polishing off Walter Beuchelt, 6—3, 6—1, in the singles.

In the other singles, Maurice O'Neill, Washington, defeated Louis Kurland, 2—6, 6—2, 6—1, while Barney Welsh felt the sting of Baker's racquet to the tune of 6—2, 4—6, 6—3. Rudy and Kurland combined to beat Pat Deck and Bill Seidel in the doubles, 6—2, 6—2, giving Baltimore its third and last win of the day O'Neill and Gene Hermann registered Washington's second doubles success at the expense of Willis and Welmon, 6—3, 6—2.

Schaaf Meets Campolo Tonight

Bout Outstanding on National Program for Week.

Dempsey to Continue Exhibitions With 3 on His List.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 (A.P.).—Outstanding on this week's national boxing program is the big heavyweight clash at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tomorrow night, between Ernie Schaaf, the big boy from Boston, and the still bigger Victorio Campolo, from Argentina. The bout, originally scheduled for last Wednesday, was postponed because of threatening weather.

The meeting will give the Argentine, who has frequently been disappointing to the fans, a final chance to redeem himself. For Schaaf a victory may be a stepping stone toward real heavyweight contendership. The distance is twelve rounds.

Midget Wolgast, of Philadelphia, generally recognized as the flyweight titleholder, is due to display his wares in a ten-round non-title bout at Indianapolis Tuesday night against Happy Atherton, Indianapolis flyweight.

Another postponed heavyweight battle takes secondary interest. Charley Retzlaff, of Duluth, promising heavyweight, is to face Joe Sekyra, of Dayton, Ohio, in a ten-rounder at the Queensboro Stadium, New York, Tuesday night, a week after the bout was originally scheduled. Retzlaff, who won his first two New York battles by knockouts, faces the hardest opposition he has met in the East in the third.

Dempsey Remains in Northwest.

FEATHERWEIGHTS TO HEAD FORT BOXING CARD TONIGHT

Landers and Tramberia In Clash

Kayo Finish Foreseen for Rugged Boxers in Feature.

Schwartz and Gates Meet; Quigley, Irving in Prelims.

MAIN EVENT.

Sailor Billy Landers, Norfolk, vs. Jimmy Tramberia, Baltimore (featherweights, 8 rounds).

SEMIFINAL.

Billy Schwartz, Alexandria, vs. Sailor Gates, Norfolk (light heavyweights, 8 rounds).

MAIN PRELIMINARY.

Jack Quigley, Washington, vs. Soldier Clark, Fort Washington (lightweights, 6 rounds).

Henry Irving, Washington, vs. Jakie Friedman, Baltimore (light heavyweights, 4 rounds).

Sailor Oden, Washington, vs. Billy Hoe, Washington (lightweights, 4 rounds).

Nevin Barber, Washington, vs. Jimmy Kiggins, Philadelphia (featherweights, 4 rounds).

SAILOR Billy Landers, of Norfolk, and Jimmy Tramberia, of Baltimore, two of the hardest punching featherweights ever to show their wares hereabouts, will collide tonight in the ring at Fort Washington in the eight-round feature of a 31-round card. The program is to open at 8:30 o'clock with the first of four preliminaries.

That a knockout victory is the only thing that will satisfy either boxer has been plainly indicated in the acrimonious veroal exchanges between the rival camps during the past two weeks. Tramberia and his manager, Bill Bandy, have been claiming that Landers has sidestepped the bout in the past, while the Norfolk sailor and his pilot, Tony Barbaria, have been promising to do modified mayhem in addition to proving that nobody but the Norfolk scrapper should be featherweight king in this section.

According to terms laid down by Fort athletic officials at the insistence of Barbaria, Tramberia must scale 124 pounds or less at 7 p. m. This requirement Tramberia says he will meet with ease. Landers will weigh in the neighborhood of 119.

Winner to Oppose Midget Wolgast.

The winner of the bout has been promised a crack at Midget Wolgast, recognized in some States as world's flyweight champion. This contest has tentatively been scheduled for September 28 as the Fort's closing attraction. Wolgast, of course, will not risk his title since he will be meeting an opponent who can not get down to the 112-pound limit.

Baker Boy Billy Schwartz, light-heavyweight of Alexandria, returns to action in the semifinal against Sailor Gates, of Norfolk. Judging from reports of Schwartz's recent improvement in training and the fact that Gates has disposed of several tough 175-pounders down Norfolk way, this mill should develop plenty of excitement. Schwartz, having worked out for the past two weeks with Marty Gallagher, hopes to win by a knockout.

Quigley and Clark to Clash.

In the main preliminary of six rounds Jack Quigley, of this city, will engage Soldier Clark, of the fort, the bout being the third between this pair this season. The first bout ended in a draw and the second in a technical knockout for Clark, the referee stopping the action in the last of the scheduled four rounds.

It was claimed by Quigley's manager the last time he fought that he had entered the bout with an injured hand, which prevented him from doing his best. Clark seeks to prove that even with nothing hampering his foe that he is the better boxer.

Henry Irving, sensational preliminary boy, will be seen again in a four-round tiff with Jakie Friedman, Baltimore's National Guard light heavyweight champion. In all probability Irving will concede some weight, as he has done in most of his previous engagements at the fort. The Washington youth, however, doesn't seem to be handicapped in meeting heavier opponents, for he owns a powerful sock in either hand. He boasts knockouts over Frank Vance and Jack Shepherd, both of whom outweighed him by about 10 pounds.

Oden and Hoe to Match Blows.

Sailor Oden and Billy Hoe, local lightweights, clash in the second bout of the program. Oden, due to a victory over Sammy Hogan and a draw with Soldier Clark, who defeated Hoe, is the favorite. The opener will produce Nevin Barber, former District amateur featherweight champion, and Jimmy Kiggins, veteran from Philadelphia. This is Nevin's first professional fight.

BITS of BOXING HEREABOUTS

By JACK ESPEY

WHILE their programs thus far have been unpretentious and their efforts apparently not directed toward getting all the sporting money afloat, the fight promoters of the Fort Washington A. A., it seems to us, would only be doing the right thing by themselves and local fans by arranging a certain heavyweight bout that looks like the most attractive scrap we have had in this vicinity in some years.

Reds Barry vs. Marty Gallagher.

If the fans wouldn't fight to see that fight, then the depression is only talk after all.

A chance to schedule Barry against Gallagher is rapping its knuckles off on the Fort's front door. Both fighters are in the city training and each has a crowd of admirers who would welcome the clash.

Gallagher's Purses Dwindle.

Gallagher at one time might have sniffed at what the Fort could offer him in the way of remuneration, but since his knockout at the hands of Charley Retzlaff his stock has taken a tumble.

Not that it means much locally, but Marty now can not command in other sections of the country the price he was getting prior to his unfortunate evening with Retzlaff. In other words, his present contract figure is the same in the big time as well as the small, which, sad to relate, but truthfully, is this section.

Barry is clamoring for a shot at Gallagher despite the fact he has a bout scheduled with Sammy Weiss, with whom he fought a draw last month. Weiss, incidentally, is the best known boxer Reds has ever met.

The forecasting facilities of this department scream the word that Barry is capable of extending Marty. On the level, we are told the Southeast redhead is much faster and just as good a boxer. Which, if true, should give the bout the aspect of being an even match with Marty conceded an edge in weight and punching power.

To date the fort has not staged an unsatisfactory card and the coffers of the athletic association are bulging. Of course, said coffers are small. Barry and Gallagher should draw enough to keep the post in the best of athletic equipment for another year; yes, enough to buy diamond-studded headgear for the football team. And the fans gladly would pay the freight.

Alexandria Backing Billy Schwartz.

Speaking of fans anxious to plank it down at a fistic box office, there will be a number of them pushing through the turnstiles at the fort tonight. They are Alexandria's ringworms, and the magnet is Baker Boy Billy Schwartz.

Win, lose or draw, the Baker Boy never fails to evoke cheers from the enthusiasts of the nearby Virginia city. Tomorrow night he resumes fisticuffing after a month's lay-off, his foe being Sailor Gates, from Norfolk. To the Virginians this will be the main bout, notwithstanding the scuffle billed between Billy Landers and Jimmy Tramberia.

The Ring magazine reflects a little glory on Schwartz in its latest edition by ranking Joe Knight, a Southerner, among the first ten light-heavyweights in the country. Schwartz won a 10-round decision from Knight in Roanoke, Va., last winter.

Three Newcomers At Mohawk Club.

The Mohawk Club gym rarely passes a week that some visitor with pugilistic aspirations does not drop in and announce himself willing to take on the best man available at his weight. If they really have anything, Patsy Donovan wastes no time signing them up. At present the midget Mohawk head man has three newcomers under his wing, ready to pop out before a local audience.

Nick Antonelli, former New York featherweight, is anxious to meet Billy Landers. Jack Coety, a middleweight from West Virginia, seeks a clash with Henry Irving, the rapidly rising Capital youth, while Jabe Navos, a Filipino flyweight, who came from Reading, Pa., will fight anybody that can be imported, there being no flyweights of ability hereabouts.

Cuddy DeMarco, former topnotch welterweight, is also in town, working on the House Office Building job. He hopes this hard work will prepare him for a return to the ring. He claims to have an offer to join the camp of Benny Leonard, now conditioning for a comeback among the welterweights.

Antonelli Popular In Norfolk.

Antonelli is popular down Norfolk way where he boxes in the top spots. Recently Nick knocked out Huey Chivatte at Virginia Beach with Tommy Loughran boxing on the card in an exhibition. He also fought a draw at Portsmouth with Mickey Greb, of Newark, and dropped a decision there to Jim Avery.

Young Navos journeyed up to Holyoke, Mass., last week and flattened Al Williams of that town in two rounds. Primo Carnera appeared in the feature of the show.

Boxing will be resumed in Baltimore after the outdoor season folds with the reopening of the Olympia Club at the 104th Medical Regiment Armory on Fayette street. Benny Franklin will be at the helm, with Eddie Ross assisting.

Baltimore soured on the fight game last year, but Franklin evidently thinks a lot of sugar has been spread around since.

Mayor Walker Sees Spanish Boxer Win

Monaco, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Joe Jirones, Spanish champion, won the European feather weight championship today, knocking out Guy Bonauguere, of France, in the eighth round of a scheduled fifteen-round bout.

Mayor Walker of New York was a ringside spectator, arriving by speedboat just before the main-bout principals entered the ring.

Baradi Bows in Upset In Filipino Net Event

The long delayed Filipino Club tennis tournament got under way yesterday on the Monument courts with most of the seeded players advancing. The only surprise of the day was the defeat of M. Baradi, coholder of the doubles championship, by a comparative unknown, Amando Tamsi.

BROWN FACES YANKS IN GOTHAM TODAY

According to Manager Walter Johnson, reports to the effect that there is dissension on the club are not true. "Al Schacht and Dave Harris had a 'kidding' match while we were in Cleveland," said Walter, "and they called each other a few names and then immediately forgot about the argument. It was nothing serious. Umpire Brick Owens fined Schact $5 for talking to some fans while in uniform before the game and Harris started 'riding' him and did get Al's goat. As far as I know—and I'm with the boys most of the time—there was no other argument of any kind among any players of the club."

Pitcher Bob (Lefty) Grove did not accompany the Mackmen here yesterday. He split a fingernail on his pitching hand and is not expected to be able to pitch for a week or more.

Manush raced far back to make a great one-hand stab of Cramer's liner in the first. The fly-hawk grabbed the ball at arm's length overhead while running back at full speed.

Miller was credited with the first Mackian hit, his hard bounder hitting Crowder on the shins and skidding all the way to short left with two gone in the second.

Cramer cut over toward right to make a pretty catch of Manush's liner opening the home third.

Federal-A. A. U. Swim Meet Booked Tonight

After a postponement from its original scheduled night due to rainy weather, the Federal A. A. U. swimming meet will take place tonight at the Chevy Chase Pool, the initial event being carded to begin at 8 o'clock.

Although set back because of rain, the championship committee has announced that it must take place tonight despite any inclement weather, as the local tank season is nearing its conclusion. The increased time has resulted in several additional entries, bringing the total to approximately 70.

KENSINGTON AHEAD.

Kensington scored a 4-to-3 victory over Hyattstown on the former's diamond yesterday, in a game that required ten innings of play. Wagner, winning hurler, held the losers to four hits, fanning fourteen opposing batters.

OWNER GETS BLAME FOR POISON

Same Case in Different Stable Would Embarrass Track.

to reply that the authorities are equally bound to keep known swindlers and racketeers off their tracks. In the present case the Saratoga stewards have applied the principle of the English fire ordinances and of the French traffic law, which holds a pedestrian liable to arrest if a taxicab runs over him.

The Messrs. George Widener and Walter Jeffords, who took such fearless action against Sinclair, probably were sitting as an auxiliary of the public courts and not merely as racing stewards. Mr. Sinclair is not socially ambitious, obsequious or ornamental, being of the tough, self-made millionaire school, and the racing authorities of the more elegant jurisdictions seem to have felt he was not sufficiently rebuked when he went to jail in Washington for his part in the oil deals of the Harding administration.

Sinclair Hero in One Stratum of Society.

To another stratum of society Mr. Sinclair was a heroic figure who stood up like a man and went to jail rather than blow the whistle on his pals. This other stratum of society is very influential in the horse track business, and its members were frankly aghast last winter when Joseph E. Widener of the better element went before the Florida State Legislature and blew the whistle on the sheriff of Miami. Some of the boys wished to excuse Mr. Widener's faux pas on the ground that he didn't know the racket very well.

But Mr. Widener is not at all dumb, and it seems probable that he knew what he was saying when he embarrassed that helpful friend of the turf, the Miami sheriff.

So to the other half of the horse track element Mr. Sinclair became an idol when he went to jail for his principles and theirs.

But undoubtedly there has been a feeling among the refined element that justice did not get an even break in that affair. So, while a Wh

SCHWARTZ NINE WINS CAPITAL CITY LEAGUE JUNIOR TITLE

Hale Is Hero Of 3-2 Win In Tenth

Stewarts Club Loses as Error Aids in Winning Score.

Capital City League Rivals in Brilliant Battle.

TEN innings of torrid play were required to settle the supremacy of the junior class, the Schwartz Jewelers finally winning by a score of 4-3. Stewart's Pharmacy contested the claim of its rival every inch of the way, but the Pharmacists failed in the closing innings and the Jewelers snatched the game out of the fire.

Stewart's broke the ice in the first inning, when Valentine hit safely, was sacrificed to second and came home on Luebkert's drive to right. Schwartz knotted the count in the third, only to have Stewart's again assume a one run lead in the sixth. In the seventh, L. Nau singled and went to second on an overthrow to first base. He scored when Thompson attempted to trap him at third after taking C. Nau's roller and threw wild. Cecil Hale won his own game in the tenth when he came through with a hit and was brought home by Miller.

Both Pitchers Are Hit Freely.

Both pitchers De Bettencourt, of Stewart's, and Hale, of Schwartz, were hit freely, the former allowing nine hits and the latter eleven. The only errors recorded were charged to the losers, and two of these resulted in the winning run. The teams put everything they had into the game in an effort to secure a safe lead over one another, but they were so evenly matched it was impossible for either to draw away. One run represents the actual difference in the two teams.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

NATURAL POSITIONS OF THE BODY.

WHEN a man is asthmatic, or struggling to get breath because of any condition of his lungs, he assumes the sitting position, with his body thrown forward, his elbows on a table or some other support, his head bowed, and his mouth open. He needs to take advantage of every mechanical aid and he assumes by instinct just the position for each bone, joint, and muscle that makes breathing easy.

Conversely, whenever a man assumes a position other than the one described, he adds a little to the load on his breathing apparatus. Singers, performers on wind instruments, runners, and swimmers might remember that. When a man's heart is working against great odds, and is just a shade more than equal to the task, he naturally assumes the prone position, with the head no higher than the body.

A good illustration is the man on the verge of fainting, who feels everything around him growing dark. He has had a rapid fall of blood pressure because his heart had trouble in keeping the vital centers of the train supplied with blood. He should lie flat, and no kind but officious friend should put a pillow under his head.

It occurs to some one to remark that men with heart disease and broken compensation must sleep sitting up. True enough, but that is because of the breathing rather than the circulation needs. The blood is kept in circulation easiest when there is no need of overcoming gravity.

Therefore, if the feet are swollen from dropsy; or there is congestion of them due to inflammation, ulceration, infection, or whatever may be, the best position is sitting or lying with the legs horizontal or with the feet somewhat higher than the hips. If the circulation is being barely maintained, tight shoes or garments may add an extra to the load that will serve as the straw that breaks.

In the natural upright position, the shoulders sag and the body and head droop forward. A thoroughly tired man sits, stands and walks in that attitude. To stand straight with the head up, chin in, and shoulders thrown back has advantages but it means fatigue and it calls for some reserve strength.

People vary in the amount of curve in the neck. The human animal has no standardized neck curve. The position for the head which is easiest for any given man is determined by his natural neck curve. However well he may maintain another head position when he is rested, he will take the easy position when he is greatly fatigued, or when he is strained nearly to the breaking point.

LACK OF TRAINING.

N. A. E. writes: Why does a 21-year-old girl suck her thumb at every possible opportunity, when she thinks there is no one looking at her? She has been doing it since childhood.

REPLY.

This is probably only one manifestation of infantile habits and reactions which this lady has. Many people carry over some of these baby habits into adult life. It is a sign of lack of mental strength, but not one of great importance. In fact, there are certain social relations for which babyishness is a qualification.

It is of more significance as an evidence of lack of character. Most of all, it indicates lack of training.

NUMB HANDS AND FEET.

M. B. F. writes: My hands and feet become numb. What is the cause and a probable cure?

REPLY.

The probable cause is pressure on a nerve. Among the causes of such pressure are sitting on a hard chair, sleeping on the hands or arms, wearing tight clothing, or tight bands.

U. S. Favors Italian Hats.

Rome (U.P.).—Nearly 2,000,000 Americans wore Italian hats last year, the government reports. Italy exported 1,740,000 hats, both felt and straw, to the United States last year. British South Africa bought nearly 500,000 felt hats and over 100,000 straw "lids." Altogether Italy exported 7,651,951 felt and 3,668,516 straw hats in 1930.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

The black crepe satin with eggshell combination is a real favorite with the smart woman.

The draped bodice lends a charming new softened line. Note the tightened waistline and snug hips.

Style No. 878 may be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39-inch material with ½ yard of 39-inch contrasting and ⅜ yard of 27-inch lace.

Another lovely idea for this slimming model is wine-red canton-faille crepe with beige crepe vest and cuffs.

Black crepe marocain is stunning.

Congress Is Held Drier Than When Law Passed

Cadiz, Ohio, Aug. 30 (U.P.).—Despite gains made by antiprohibitionists in 1930, both houses of Congress are drier than they were when the eighteenth amendment was passed, Boyd P. Doty, attorney for the World League Against Alcoholism, said in an address today.

"Nevertheless," he said, "there is a grave danger in the studied, well-organized, highly financed attack by the wets upon State cooperation in defense of the Federal Constitution. The wets have attacked State after State in an effort to repeal State laws in order to break down State cooperation in prohibition enforcement."

GIRL KILLED, 2 HURT AS AUTO OVERTURNS NEAR HALL STATION

Machine Goes Off Highway During Attempts to Avoid Collision.

CAR STRIKES CHILD, 6, PLAYING NEAR HOME

Young Woman Is Seriously Injured While Riding on Motorcycle.

Margaret Lauer, 18 years old, of 2205 Lawrence street northeast, was instantly killed last night and two friends were injured when an automobile in which they were riding overturned on Central avenue near Hall Station, Md.

In another accident, Nancy Lee Geary, 6 years old, of Capitol Heights, Md., was injured when struck by an automobile while playing in front of her home. The child is in an undetermined condition in Casualty Hospital.

Miss Lauer was riding with Joseph Santucci, 23 years old, of Oak Terrace, Brookland, D. C., and Winifred L. King, 20 years old, of 3401 Twenty-second street northeast, a neighbor.

Overturns Off Road.

As the automobile drove along the highway near Hall Station, it appeared to become unmanageable while trying to avoid a collision with another car, it left the road and overturned. Hugh Ostermeyer, of Hall Station, Md., a passing motorist, brought the girl to Casualty Hospital, where she was pronounced dead by Deputy Coroner Joseph D. Rogers.

Santucci and Miss King were taken to Sibley Hospital in another machine. Miss King is under treatment for possible internal injuries and shock. Her condition is undetermined. The driver, Santucci, was taken to Gallinger Hospital for treatment of a possible fracture of the skull.

In addition to her parents, Miss Lauer is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Esther Jenkins and Doris Lauer. Her father conducts a barber shop in Hyattsville.

Philadelphia Woman Hurt.

Mrs. Thomas Dougherty, 23, of Philadelphia, Pa., was injured early yesterday afternoon when the automobile in which she was riding overturned on the Baltimore-Washington boulevard.

It was said at Casualty Hospital, where she was taken in a passing automobile, that her injuries were not serious, consisting of cuts and lacerations about the face and body. Early last night few details of the accident could be ascertained, but it was believed that the car in which Mrs. Dougherty was a passenger overturned in an effort by its driver to avoid a collision with another car.

A colored girl was probably fatally injured late yesterday afternoon when a motorcycle on which she was riding overturned near Waldorf, Md. Both her legs were nearly severed and her left foot and ankle were cut from her leg. Her condition was described at Casualty Hospital as "critical."

Riding On Motorcycle.

The injured girl, Susie Thomas, 20, of Waldorf, Md., was riding on a motorcycle driven by Raymond Stewart, 20, colored, 416 Eleventh street southwest. The Thomas girl told Ninth Precinct police and Casualty Hospital physicians she had pleaded with Stewart to refrain from speeding, but that he did not heed her. Stewart was held at the Ninth Precinct pending outcome of the girl's injuries.

Eva Walker, 22 years old, colored, of 930 Snow's Court northwest, was brought to Emergency Hospital yesterday, suffering of a possible fracture of the skull received, she said, while in an automobile at Twenty-fifth and I streets northwest. Reginald L. Busey, 24 years old, colored, of 811 Twenty-fourth street northwest, who was said to be in the same car with the woman, was booked for investigation at the Third Precinct.

Armed Holdup Nets $6.

Police, last night were on the lookout for several armed colored men who held up and robbed James H. Crompton, of 313 Tenth street southeast, of a wallet containing $6, early yesterday morning. Crompton told police that he was walking near South Capitol and M streets, southwest, when the men accosted him with drawn pistols and demanded his money.

TWO CAPTURED HERE IN ROCKVILLE BREAK

Third of Prisoners Who Dug Way Through Jail Wall Is Still at Large.

Quick work by the Montgomery County and Washington police resulted in the apprehension of two of three colored prisoners yesterday morning within a few hours after they escaped from the Rockville Jail.

The trio broke from the jail before dawn by forcing a hole through the wall of a cell on the second floor and making a rope of bedclothes. The fugitives were: William Lee Evans, colored, of Washington, who was awaiting action of the grand jury on a charge of stealing jewelry from the home of John Vance, of Chevy Chase; John Luther Preston, of Baltimore, also held for action of the grand jury on a charge of larceny, and Curtis Brent, colored, of Germantown, Md., who was serving a three months' sentence on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

Preston and Brent were arrested in Washington by Bicycle Policeman R. C. Jackson, of the Second Precinct, half an hour after a description of the runaways had been sent to police headquarters here by the Montgomery County identification bureau at Bethesda and broadcast on the local police radio. Evans, caught twice before in the act of trying to break from jail, according to Montgomery County police, was still at large early last night. He had been in the Rockville Jail for six months.

The escape was not discovered until 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Preston and Brent were arrested at 10:45 o'clock, half an hour after Washington police received descriptions of the fugitives.

Bottled Note Asks Aid for 3 on Island

A note inclosed in a bottle which had apparently been in the water for some time, and appealing for help for a man and his two children "stuck on Fisherman's Island" in Long Island Sound, was found yesterday by a boy at play at Fairhaven, Md., about eight miles north of Chesapeake Beach.

James Ferry, 10 years old, of Bethlehem, Pa., was visiting his aunt, Miss Helen McGarvey, whose Washington address is 610 Rock Creek Church road. The boy gave the note to his aunt, and her sister, Miss Stella McGarvey, brought it to The Post.

The note was written on a small piece of paper apparently torn from a note book. It is grease spotted and shows some wear. It is undated. On the back is a crude map of Long Island and Fishermans Island, showing the place to be somewhere off the Rhode Island coast.

"Mr. Smith is stuck on Fishermans Island," it reads. "My boat leaks. I have signal out, but nobody sees it. I have two children, a boy and a girl. The girl is very ill. The boy is 10, the girl is 8. We have a rude hut. We need help. Have run out of medicine. We have been here three months. Here is a map."

It is signed "Mr. Edward Smith."

UNION OF VETERAN GROUPS ADVOCATED

Resolution Favoring Joint Action Adopted by Army and Navy Body.

Union of all veterans' organizations and of former service men, into one compact organization to support causes in which veterans are interested is proposed in a resolution adopted by the President's own garrison, No. 104, Army and Navy Union, U. S. A. at its last bimonthly meeting. The resolution will be presented to the national encampment of the organization at Atlantic City on September 9.

Pointing out that the Army and Navy Union, described as the next to the oldest large organization of its type, has always favored uniform rates of pensions, gratuities and benefits provided by law for disabled veterans, the resolution urges other veterans' organizations and former service men to "unite with the Army and Navy Union as quickly as possible for the purpose of forming one big veterans' organization which will have sufficient power," to work for the welfare and interests of former service men, "without prejudice to the tax payers, interference with law makers or embarrassment to the administration."

The measure, which was unanimously adopted, was presented on motion of Col. William N. McKelvy, council of administration, and was seconded by Dr. Harry T. Dunbar, national surgeon general.

Baptist Church Robbed; Loot Is Placed at $82

Theft of a vacuum cleaner and tableware from a room in the basement of the Chevy Chase Baptist Church, Western avenue and Belt road northwest, was discovered by officials of the church yesterday.

TRAFFIC DISRUPTED AS SIGNAL SYSTEM GOES OUT OF ORDER

Half Hour Taken Untangling Jam on Upper Sixteenth Street.

ROUTING AT STADIUM CAUSES MORE DELAY

Motorist Is Sent Directly Away From Goal by Police Order.

Heavy Sunday afternoon traffic on upper Sixteenth street northwest was disrupted yesterday and thrown into a snarl when signal lights temporarily went out of order. Horns tooted, motorists raved and gesticulated, but it was more than half an hour before police had untangled the jam, and more than half an hour elapsed before repairs were made which put the lights back on a normal basis.

About the same time as the difficulties developed on Sixteenth street, baseball fans who had parked their cars in the vicinity of Fourth street northwest, east of Griffith Stadium and near Freedmen's Hospital, and on adjacent streets, reported considerable trouble in getting to thoroughfares leading northward after yesterday's game. The Post also received several reports that fans coming toward the stadium, before the game, from the direction of Petworth and the Soldiers' Home, were routed through narrow alleys, causing annoying delay.

Sent on Opposite Route.

Some of the confusion was occasioned by the fact that Fourth street is blocked off to traffic between W street and Bryant street, because of operations of the Water Department. While this element was taken into consideration, no reason for prohibiting motorists from making their way toward either Fifth street or across Bryant or W streets, and then around the reservoir, was given or was apparent.

One citizen, who had parked his car in front of the Mott School on W street, near Fourth, and who lives near the Soldiers' Home, was routed by police in a direct line away from his home because of "orders." This motorist said while attempting to proceed west on W street to Sixth street, he was directed at Fifth street to circle the stadium.

Proceeding south on Fifth street to T street, and thence westward on that thoroughfare, he was directed at Sixth street and Florida avenue to proceed south on Sixth street, traveling to S street, then westward to Seventh street and then went north only to run into the heavy south and north bound traffic coming from parking spaces adjacent to the park.

Investigation Promised.

Capt. Harry Groves of the Second Precinct said last night that, while he was not on duty yesterday, he was not aware of any instructions being given to reroute traffic. He said he would look into the motorists' complaints and alleviate the conditions, if the complaints were substantiated.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer could not be reached last night for comment on the traffic light troubles, but it was said at Traffic Bureau headquarters that only one light had been reported out of order on Sixteenth street—that at Sixteenth and Harvard. Many motorists, however, said they observed that the lights for blocks, both north and south of Harvard street, were not functioning properly.

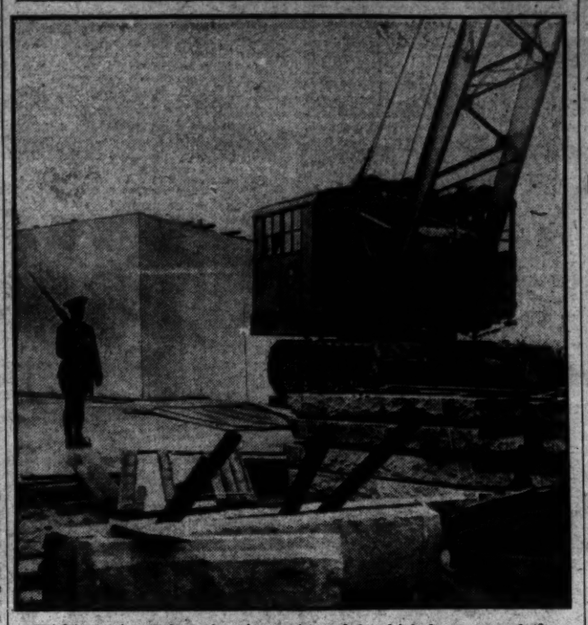
NEW TOMB TO COVER UNKNOWN



Within a short time the plain white slab which has covered the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington will be replaced by an impressive marble sarcophagus, carved from a block of stone weighing 56 tons, which was recently authorized by Congress. Photo shows the scene in front of the Ampitheater as the work proceeds; although the tomb has been concealed by a temporary fence and is dwarfed by a huge crane which is placing the stone, the guard of honor still maintains its constant vigil.

THOUSANDS ATTEND HOLY NAME SESSION

Baltimore Society's Rally at Libertytown Draws Many From Capital.

Several thousand persons from Washington, Baltimore, Hagerstown, Westminster and other places attended a rally of the Baltimore Holy Name Society at St. Francis Catholic Church, at Libertytown, Md., yesterday.

The Rev. John T. Coolahan, pastor of St. John's Catholic Church in Frederick, was celebrant at solemn benediction at the close of the rally. The Rev. John J. Donlan, pastor of St. Francis Church, Brunswick, Md., and the Rev. Joseph L. Curran, pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Church, Thurmont, Md., was subdeacon. The sermon was preached by the Rev. Terrence F. Beehan, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church, Hagerstown, and a native of this city.

The speakers were the Rev. Dr. John J. Russell, assistant spiritual director of the Baltimore section of the Holy Name Society, and George G. Mantz, president of the Baltimore Archdiocesan Holy Name Union. The Right Rev. Monsignor P. L. Ireton, spiritual director of the Archdiocesan Union, led in the recitation of the Holy Name pledge.

During the afternoon the members visited shrines in the cemetery adjoining the church. At the entrance is the Grotto of the Nativity, showing the figures of the stable of Bethlehem. This grotto was dedicated as a memorial to the American dead in the World War.

Another Grotto was dedicated to the memory of those who died when the steamer Titanic went down at sea about 20 years ago. This memorial is in the form of a Calvary group. The Rev. Philip L. Farrell is pastor of the church.

Holdup Trio Is Sought In $20 Street Robbery

Detective squads last night were searching for three colored men who attacked and robbed Harold McCormick, 31, 102 E street northwest, early yesterday morning.

McCormick was walking on New Jersey avenue near Second street northwest, when he was suddenly grabbed by three colored men, who demanded his money. He told police that he resisted and was beaten about the head and neck, after which the men robbed him of $20 in bills. He furnished police with descriptions of all three and said he could identify them.

CLERIC CITES PEACE LEGACY OF CHRIST

Rev. Haskell R. Deal Points Out Its Three-Fold Purpose in Life.

Choosing the fourteenth verse of the twenty-seventh chapter of John as a text, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you," the Rev. Haskell R. Deal, assistant pastor of the Mount Vernon Methodist Episcopal Church, Massachusetts avenue and Ninth street, delivered a sermon on "Peace in the Soul" last night.

In introducing his subject, Dr. Deal said that Christ had at His death willed to humanity His Peace. "This legacy of Christ," he said, "has left to the human race a quality of life for the enrichment and broadening of human life. It is commissioned to make a new race in Christ Jesus. This glorious legacy is at our disposal."

Saying that this Peace has a threefold purpose in life, Dr. Deal termed the first, "The True Sense of Values." He pointed out the distinction between the primary and the secondary things of life, saying that many people have never learned to distinguish between the two. The expression, "What shall we eat, or wherewithal shall we be clothed," was said to be a good example of a point of secondary importance while the primary consideration should be, "Are we worth feeding?"

Help Us to Forget.

"The peace of God is to help us to forget about the secondary things of life," he said. "Warfare is waged by mankind for the securement of secondary things, for material things. Christ has given to the world peace and a spiritual quality of life, which remove the causes of these conflicts," Dr. Deal declared.

The second value of this attitude of peace was said to be "an aggressive quality of life." In pointing out that peace does not mean that we are to cease in the struggle for worth-while things in life, Dr. Deal said that it meant rather that we must enlist all our forces in the combat against fear and wickedness.

Third Quality of Peace.

The third quality of peace was described as "a stayed mind." "The human mind should guide a person to live a rightly ordered course, and, the best way this can be accomplished is to have the mind stayed on God," he said. "It is the rightly ordered life which is like the peace of the river. It is this peace quality of spiritual life given of Christ, to lift humanity into the realm of divine order, which inspires and challenges our very soul.

"When man decides to accept this glorious legacy of Jesus Christ and the human race delivers itself in full response to this spiritual quality of life, 'the peace of God which surpasses all human understanding,' there will be a new heaven and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness," Dr. Deal concluded.

The church quartet sang "The Lord My Pasture Shall Prepare," by Spross. Arthur Tabbutt, soloist, rendered "The Lord Is My Light" as the offertory solo, by Allitsen.

Alleged Informer Faces Impersonation Charge

Lewis E. Smith, 23 years old, colored, of 1218 Girard street northwest, who told police he is an informer for the Second Inspection District Vice Squad, was arrested last night for impersonating an officer.

He was taken into custody by Patrolmen G. L. Carder and A. B. Clark, after a group of youths at Thirteenth and W streets northwest had complained that he flashed a badge on them and ordered them to move. The badge, police said, is an old police shield. Smith, according to police, was arrested a year ago for the same offense.

MINISTER ASSERTS TENSION IGNORING OF PEOPLE FATAL

Failure to Understand Signs of Times Cited Cause of Catastrophes.

WORLD PACIFISM HELD THAT OF GORGED LIONS

Dr. Worthley Ends Sermon Series at All Souls' Unitarian Church.

"The Tensions of the Times" was the subject of a sermon delivered yesterday morning at the 11 o'clock service of All Souls' Unitarian Church, Sixteenth and Harvard streets northwest, by the Rev. Evans A. Worthley, visiting speaker from Schenectady, N. Y.

Tracing periods of unusual stress through medieval times, Dr. Worthley pointed out the leadership taken by several famous characters of history. He compared their mistakes to the attitude and teachings of Christ, who came on earth "when disaster was in the wind" and taught and guided the people of his race to a better understanding of the important things in life, and of the way they should live toward one another.

Dr. Worthley explained the nature of the coming of a period of tension, making clear that it is not an overnight occurrence, but an accumulation of events and circumstances which alter the people's attitude toward their surrounding environment and their leaders.

Ignoring Signs Cost Thrones.

Showing how in many periods the people did not heed the signs of the times to their own great disadvantage, Dr. Worthley said: "This was the case in the period preceding the French Revolution. I have read that one of the most brilliant parties was never finished. The guests were playing backgammon, and just before the last throw of the dice the revolutionists entered and cut off the heads of the aristocrats.

"Coming closer to our own time," he went on, "we are ourselves living in a period when thrones have toppled and catastrophes occurred which might have been delayed and possibly averted if the leaders of those respective countries had been wise enough to have understood better than they did the tension that was developing around them in the hearts of men."

Pointing out the difficulty with which people read the signs of the past and showing how much more difficult it is to read the signs of the present, Dr. Worthley went on: "We are without excuse if, possessing reasonable certainty regarding the general conditions of our contemporary life, we fail to give to the signs of the times the attentions of not merely observers but of participants. For contemporary events are our events; no matter how vaguely we may be related to them, we have some share in either the happiness or the distress which follows."

Interracial Tension Seen.

Applying this thought to present conditions, Dr. Worthley said, "He is not a worthwhile citizen of the Commonwealth who does not feel the truth of Thoreau's words, 'Whenever any are imprisoned unjustly, the true place for a just man is also in prison'."

Studying and analyzing the signs of the immediate present in detail, Dr. Worthley said that we should look at these signs of tension "not as visitors from Mars" but as men and women who are not unmoved by the tension and torture of the times.

"Probably the most far-reaching tension of the day is the general attitude of members of the white race toward members of the colored race," the speaker went on.

In regard to the question of war and the result of not paying attention to the signs of the tension Dr. Worthley said, "we have exhausted ourselves by the most destructive war in history. The peoples of the world are not willing to pay taxes nor to pour out their lives for the perpetuation of empires in far away places. The result is that in many instances we turn pacifists.

Youngstown Pastor Coming.

"The bankers, the politicians, the Kelloggs, Briands and Chamberlains, even the churches turn pacifist. But that does not fool the thinking man. We know what sort of pacifism that is. It is the pacifism of the gorged lion.

"We are trying to stave off as long as possible the balance of international justice. We regard it as only one more indication of the swift approach of a day of justice. This is not a correct or constructive interpretation of the signs of the times."

Music was under direction of Lev Atwater at the organ. Charles Tittmann, bass, sang two solos.

The service marked the end of Worthley's two-week visit to Souls' Church. He left last night f Schenectady and Dr. DuBois LeFev of the First Unitarian Churc Youngstown, Ohio, will conduct ser ices next Sunday and September 13

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE LEADER EXPLAINS.

(John F. Curry, boss of Tammany Hall, grilled by a New York legislative committee on his telephone call to a Supreme Court judge to get a stay for a man involved in a legislative graft inquiry, declared he saw nothing wrong in the action and that he was actuated only by deep regard for all Democrats. "I have," he added, "only the kindliest feeling for all men and women. Whenever I can help the Democratic party I will step on the gas.")

I.

I'M the leader of Tammany Hall, sir,
But you've got me all wrong, I am sure,
For you don't seem to know, not at all, sir,
It's a home of the saintly and pure!
Politics you ascribe to me solely—
(Is that fair to a Tammany boy?)
Let me tell you my purpose is wholly
Distribution of sunshine and joy.

II.

An apostle of cheer am I merely,
As benevolent, sir, as they come;
I'm a Santa Claus, loving all dearly
And I don't wait for Christmas to come;
Oh, it matters not what a man's name is,
I am here to protect and defend;
I don't bother to find where the blame is—
For I'm just his Big Brother and Friend.

III.

Little favors I do when requested,
For it makes my fine spirit soar high;
And I'm glad to see legal points tested
Without asking the wherefor or why;
I've a love that's without limitations
For all Democrats, evil and good,
And I'd free them of all aggravations
With the held of such courts as I could.

IV.

I'VE a feeling of deepest affection
That extends to mankind as a whole;
It grows somewhat intense at election
But it's always quite deep in my soul;
Doing good is a part of my manner,
I would brighten the pathway of all;
I'm a Fourteenth Street Sweet "Pollyanner"
And the Sunshine of Tammany Hall.

V.

Names and persons to me do not matter,
I've no special regard for Doc Doyle!
Favors just as important I scatter
To a Smith or a Jones or a Boyle;
For my only concern in such cases
Is to do just another good deed;
It's a pleasure to telephone places
And obtain what good friends of mine need.

VI.

Facts and data are not necessary
To enlist my good will and support;
You will find that I'm eager, yes very,
To "locate," as they say, any court;
Great protector am I of the party
And all Democrats, female and male,
They will find me a man with a hearty
Resolution to keep them from jail.

L'ENVOI.

JUST a big-hearted leader, that's me, sir,
With a wholesome regard for the mass;
If you want any help secretly, sir,
Telephone and I'll "step on the gas."

AS THE WHEAT FARMER SEES IT.

The attitude of the Western farmer is that it isn't the wheat, it's the stupidity.

The Bank for International Settlements has named an official "lookout" whose job it is to keep on the watch for any and all financial troubles in any and all nations. His name is Per Jacobsson and he is a Swedish budgeteer of great fame. Well, best wishes, Mr. Jacobsson, and don't say we didn't warn you.

Brothers, 3 and 4, Visit Zoo; Return Unaware of Search

Adventure of the brand that many youngsters dream about and few realize was experienced yesterday afternoon by Dick Marbois, 4 years old, and his 3-year-old brother, Noel, of 1820 Clydesdale place northwest, when they spent five hours by themselves seeing the animals in the zoo and exploring the surrounding residential section.

The small brothers slipped away from home about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and within half an hour Tenth Precinct police and the father Anthony Marbois, were searching the neighborhood for them. The zoo was given a thorough combing but the explorers must have been several cages ahead because they were never seen.

The boys returned home about 7 o'clock last night, weary but full of gossip of what they had seen. The boys left the zoo by the Connecticut avenue entrance, walked across Taft Bridge to Eighteenth and Columbia road and then found their way home, they said. It was easy for them to find the zoo as they live less than a block from the entrance, but how they knew the way through the large park and then back home is something only children can explain.

Indian Gravedigger Jailed Twice; 'Firewater' Blamed

Frederick C. Bell, 64 years old, a full-blooded Cherokee Indian, who, among other things, is a gravedigger at Arlington Cemetery, was arrested twice over the week-end on charges of drunkenness.

The first occasion was Saturday evening, when he was accused of "whooping things up" in Indian fashion in the vicinity of Wisconsin avenue and M streets northwest.

Early yesterday he was released from the Seventh Precinct, and he bounced back in again a few hours later for allegedly "whooping" again while under the alleged influence of "fire water." He lives in Arlington, Va.
